

Israeli Victory Proclaimed in Record-Breaking Time

By JAMES FERON
(c) New York Times News Service
JERUSALEM—Israel proclaimed victory last night as her troops approached the Suez Canal, occupied the major cities in western Jordan and captured the Egyptian port that blocked the Strait of Tiran.

The Israeli chief of staff, Gen. Itzhak Rabin, said at a news conference in Tel Aviv that "in less than three days we have dealt severe blows to their air forces and a crippling blow to the Egyptians."

"We find ourselves today—60 hours after fighting began—with the majority of Egypt's armies in Sinai defeated. There are delaying battles here and there but the main Egyptian force is trying to get across the Suez Canal," Rabin said.

Possibly the most dramatic battle of all ended shortly after 10 o'clock yesterday morning when Israel soldiers seized the Old City of Jerusalem and restored the unity of the ancient city for the first time since 1948.

The 47-hour battle ended when an Israeli column broke through St. Stephen's Gate on the Eastern side of the city. Within hours Khaki-clad soldiers were praying at the Wailing Wall, Judaism's most sacred site.

Maj. Gen. Moshe Dayan, Minister of Defense, said at the wall "we have returned to the holiest of our holy places, never to depart

WARREN COUNTY

The neighborhood analysis in the Warren Borough Master Plan shows pocket blight in various sections of the city, but the overall situation is much better than many boom-towns which benefited from the oil-drilling days. Some properties may be demolished under the borough's new housing codes. Page One.

Sheffield's McMillen Lumber Co. was visited by 106 Swiss wood manufacturers on Tuesday. The group is touring the north-eastern U.S. to gain a better understanding of the raw material that goes into their products. Page B-1.

MIDEAST AT A GLANCE

At The Fronts

Israel claimed victory in the Sinai Desert after three days of fighting. Sharm El Sheikh, guarding the entrance to the Gulf of Aqaba, fell after a paratroop attack. Other Israeli units were within 25 miles of the Suez Canal, and one report placed them near Ismailia on the canal itself.

In Jerusalem, for the first time in 19 years, Jews prayed at the Wailing Wall as Israeli troops occupied the Old City. Israeli troops captured Jericho, in Jordan, and sped northward to take Nablus, giving them control of the west bank of the Jordan.

In Cairo the high command reported that Egyptian forces had fallen back from first-line positions in the Sinai Peninsula and were fiercely fighting against Israeli troops from unspecified secondary positions. It announced that Egyptian troops had pulled back from Sharm El Sheikh to join the main defense units.

In The Capitals

At the United Nations, Israel accepted the Security Council's call for a cease-fire. In Amman, the Jordanian government announced that it would also accept the cease-fire.

In Paris, the French government proposed an international agreement on Aqaba similar to those governing free passage for all ships through the Bosphorus and the Dardanelles in Turkey.

In Moscow, the Soviet Union threatened to break diplomatic relations with Israel if she did not accept the cease-fire. No mention was made of demanding a withdrawal of Israeli troops.

SPORTS

Sparked by the pitching and hitting of Ken Sorensen, Warren Auto Clinic handed Warren Beverage their first defeat of the season in City Softball League play last night, 6-3. Bob Ishman paced Nichols U-Haul to an 8-2 victory over Sons of Italy in the nightcap at Carbon Memorial Field with three doubles and four RBIs. Page A9.

Professional athletes in both basketball and hockey gained benefits yesterday. National Basketball Association owners and the league's players agreed to a pension plan that will give a ten-year veteran $600 per month for life after age 65 and National Hockey League owners recognized the league's player association for the first time. WITHIN THE CODE?

With the passage of building and housing codes, chances are structures like these in the borough of Warren should be in line for demolition or rehabilitation. The vacant house in the upper photo is on the east side of East st., between Fifth and Sixth ave., while the empty residence in the bottom photo, is situated on East between Fourth and Fifth. (Photos by Mansfield)

Borough Analysis Covers Housing

By BETTY RICE

With urban renewal on the move in Warren, the consultant firm of Kendree and Shepherd had prepared a neighborhood analysis for the borough planning commission.

The 1963 master plan points out that in excess of 92 per cent of the community's residential structures were built prior to 1939. This extremely high figure is a result of Warren's tremendous growth after 1900, when oil became a determining factor in Warren's industrial role in northern Pennsylvania.

Despite the rapid growth which normally accompanies "boom towns," Warren was fortunate in that street patterns had been determined as early as 1795 when the town site was first surveyed.

A field survey conducted during September of 1966 noted an unusually large amount of private rehabilitation work underway or completed within the borough.

Experts pointed out the frame construction used in a large portion of the residential buildings reflect strongly the era in which they were built. In many cases the only remaining exterior evidence in these 19th century structures are the roofing materials and foundations. Windows and door frames, porches and stairways were obvious indicators of older houses which had been covered over.

According to the survey, however, the accessory structures of residential buildings were in extremely poor condition on the whole. Many sheds and garages are dilapidated and create an eyesore.

In making the survey and subsequent reports, neighborhoods in the borough were divided into five areas. The 1960 census of population and housing was used as a basis for a break-down.

Pennsylvania avenue West is listed as having a total neighborhood population of 1,723 and 596 dwelling units. Homes owner-occupied total 320, 228 renter-occupied and 21 vacant. As to condition, 533 are said to be good, 24 deteriorating, and 12 dilapidated.

The Seneca neighborhood, located to the south of the business district, with 934 residents in 1960, was found to be above average in Warren with respect to residential stability and tenure.

Structural conditions were above the borough norm and the highest percentage of sound housing (97 per cent) was registered in this area. While 10 properties were listed as deteriorating, none were

JORDAN SAYS YES

Tel Aviv Accepts UN Ceasefire; Egyptians Decline

By DREW MIDDLETON

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
UNITED NATIONS—The Israeli government announced last night its agreement to a cease-fire on all fronts in the Middle East provided it was accepted by its Arab foes.

Jordan also announced her agreement, sending a note to Secretary General Thant and an order to her armed forces to observe the cease-fire "except in self-defense."

(In Paris, the Egyptian embassy announced that Cairo had rejected the Security Council's appeal for a cease-fire. Agence France-Presse reported, Jordan said she was continuing to fight, although she had agreed to the cease-fire, because of "Israeli aggression." It was reported from Amman, Iraq also rejected the cease-fire proposal.)

Foreign Minister Abba Eban communicated the Israeli decision to Secretary General Thant when they conferred for 55 minutes last night. Thant circulated the news to the members of the Security Council.

Israel's agreement came a few hours after the Security Council had unanimously adopted a resolution submitted by the Soviet Union demanding that the combatants "cease fire and all military activities on 7 June 1967 at 2000 hours G.M.T."

A cease-fire already in effect between Israel and Jordan, Eban told the Secretary General.

Arab delegations were uninformed about their governments' reaction to the Israeli initiative. Many were resigned to an end to the war by early yesterday as a flood of reports of Israeli victories reached U.N. headquarters. Some expressed bitterness at what one called the "hesitancy" of the Soviet Union to intervene in this crisis of Arab affairs.

Soviet policy, now seems intent on saving Moscow's battered Arab allies from further punishment and thus salvaging some of the prestige the U.S.S.R. has lost in the Middle East in the last 72 hours.

"If the Russians were misled about the quality of the Arab armies," a diplomat with long experience in the area said, "the Arabs were equally misled about the willingness of the Soviets to help them militarily when the balloon went up."

At the time stipulated in the Soviet resolution, which was yesterday at 4 p.m. in New York, fighting would have stopped in Jordan and Israel at 10 p.m. there and at 11 p.m. in the United Arab Republic and Syria. The resolution was

ALISON COMFORT

Guardsmen Pull Out Of Search

CANJILON, N.M. (AP) — The New Mexico National Guard pulled its troops out of the search yesterday for an elusive band of defiant Spanish-Americans who shot up a county courthouse and wounded two officers this week.

About 25 state police officers remained in the northern New Mexico countryside, however, seeking to pin down the raiders. They were believed to have been members of an organization which laid claim to hundreds of thousands of acres of land in the Southwest under old Spanish land grants.

"I think the guard has outlived its usefulness there," said Republican Gov. David F. Cargo, 38, concerning the decision to withdraw nearly 400 National Guard troops from the Canjilon area.

"It's very difficult to find anybody in that large area," Cargo said.

The sparsely settled area, inhabited largely by Spanish-speaking persons, has been combed since more than 30 raiders swept down on the courthouse at Tierra Amarilla on Monday. Some of their compatriots were being arraigned on charges growing out of previous actions by the former Federal Alliance of Land Grants.

Graduation Present: Sister Here

By SUE MACKS

and DIANE HANNOLD
Youngsville High School's exchange student from New Zealand, Alison Comfort, will have a member of her family on hand tonight when she is graduated in commencement exercises.

Here for Allison's graduation is her sister, Sandra, 21, who has been touring the United States since early spring.

Sandra arrived in Warren last Friday after touring Florida, Washington, D.C., and Pittsburgh.

The Mervin Craft family, with whom Alison has made her home during the school year, will be with Sandra when Allison graduates. They have a double reason—Alison is one, and their daughter, Yvonne, is the other. She is Allison's American "sister," and she will be graduated this evening as well.

Sandra will leave Sunday for Canada and will continue her North American tour until September, when her boat departs for New Zealand.

Ceasefire

adopted less than one hour before the stipulated time.

With Israel's acceptance of a ceasefire, the issue in the view of Security Council members is in President Gamal Abdel Nasser's hands. If the U.A.R. continues to fight, Israel would likely continue the battle undeterred by Fedorenko's threat of a rupture of diplomatic relations.

One aspect of the crisis was the loss of face of the U.N. in the Middle East. Israel claims, it sees a need for bilateral agreements between Israel and her neighbors that will free Arab-Israeli relations from the "cold straitjacket."

In this situation, it was said Israel believes that the U.S. HAS "a moral commitment" to help Israel and other states willing to make a fresh start.

The factors in this commitment, according to Israeli sources, are:

—Israel's forbearance under the provocation of Nasser's blockade of the Gulf of Aqaba.

—The "surge of support" in the west for a country that accepted the dangers inherent in the massing of Arab forces against it.

—The Israeli government's willingness to give the U.S. and other interested nations an opportunity to work out a solution of the crisis.

In view of this, these sources said, the U.S. owes Israel "full consideration" in the negotiations that lie ahead.

Rockefeller Hits

Wrong Building

(c) N.Y. Times News Service NEW YORK — Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York stunned Harlem onlookers and surprised himself when he smashed a huge steel ball against the wrong building yesterday at demolition ceremonies for a new state office building.

After an hour-long program marking the occasion, the Governor climbed into a crane and pressed a button that would drive the orange ball against a vacant Corn Exchange Bank Building on Lenox Avenue.

As 400 persons watched in bright sunlight, the ball swung too far to the right and hit a three-story brick building that is still occupied. Those in the building, who had been watching from open windows, were stunned by the impact.

Analysis

diplapated at the time of the last census. There was a total of 323 dwelling units, 217 owner-occupied; 96 rented and 10 vacant.

In the central neighborhood, bounded by the Conewango Creek, the Allegheny River, Laurel street and the borough boundary, 2,902 persons reside in 1,221 dwelling units. Typical of any central business area, the tenure figures reveal only 38 per cent of the dwelling units as owner-occupied and 58 per cent rented. The highest vacancy ration, eight per cent, was found in this neighborhood. Similarly, in the downtown neighborhood, the consultant found a low percentage of sound dwelling units (89 per cent), when compared to other neighborhoods. In deteriorating condition were 120 units, and 13 were dilapidated.

Largely residential in nature, the North neighborhood, is formed by the borough boundary on north and east, Jackson avenue on the south and Conewango Creek on the west. The census indicated that 95 per cent of the structures were of sound condition while five per cent were deteriorated. Only two structures (a negligible per cent) were dilapidated.

In this area in 1960 there were 3,624 persons residing in 1,157 dwelling units. Of these 933 homes were owner-occupied, 211 rented and 23 vacant. The North neighborhood is predominantly single-family residences and unlike the other four areas has a very low frequency of two-family and multiple-family structures. Most of the new home construction which has occurred within Warren, in the last few years, the consultants said, has been in this neighborhood particularly around Buchanan street and above Monroe street.

The fifth neighborhood contains that portion of the borough lying in the southeast corner beyond Jackson avenue and the Conewango Creek. In this Pennsylvania Avenue E. neighborhood, 90 per cent of all its 1,844 units were considered sound, with 167 units listed as deteriorating and 15 dilapidated. Its population during the last census was 1,843.

A problem area mentioned in the survey was within the industrial sector which lies between the railroad and Allegheny River, from River street west to South Street. Consultants said what remains is a series of poorly maintained warehouses and other auxiliary structures owned by some of the larger industries north of the railroad tracks. It was noted in the survey there are many abandoned and dilapidated structures in this area, most of which could be eliminated without serious loss to the companies owning them.

Consultants have listed in summary form, the names of areas recommended for treatment, type of treatment and approximate priority. These are East street, rehabilitation spot clearance and top of the list. Next is rehabilitation spot clearance on Fifth Avenue West; clearance and redevelopment, Chestnut-Fourth Avenue; rehabilitation, Park street; clearance and redevelopment, lower Irvle street; clearance and redevelopment, Hemlock street and the same treatment for Parker street.

Other streets have been singled out for code enforcement only.

from it again." General Rabin said Israeli forces had broken the back of the Arab Legion, and added: "I wonder why Jordan took part in this thing?"

"The war was conducted by Israel alone against Egypt, Jordan, Syria and Iraq," General Rabin said. It was a war, he said, that did not resemble any other war.

Israeli officials noted that the western powers had banned arms shipments but had not otherwise aided or hindered Israel.

Officials here have refused to disclose casualty figures but General Rabin said they were not large — considering the magnitude of the battle.

General Rabin reported that Israeli armor in the Sinai had captured Rumail in the northern Sinai and neared Mitla in the south. The junction of Bir Gafaga has been taken, he said. Capture of Suez Canal appeared to be only hours away as the Israeli columns raced toward Ismailia and Kantara.

Highways Commission Hikes Auto Licenses

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Pennsylvania Highways Commission proposed an increase in both auto and truck registration fees yesterday to help finance $1.5 billion in road construction and improvements through 1973.

The recommendations, which included the borrowing of $600 million, were approved by the nine-member commission by a unanimous voice vote and sent to Gov. Shafer and the General Assembly, already beset with proposed tax increases.

The commission, acting on a financing plan drawn up by Secretary of Highways Robert G. Bartlett, asked the legislature to raise passenger and station wagon fees from $10 and $12 respectively to a flat $20 and increase truck, tractor and trailer fees by 50 per cent, both effective July 1.

Bartlett estimated that the increase in registration fees would net $433.1 million over the next six years. The additional $600 million, which would be borrowed by the State Highways and Bridge Authority after July 1, 1971, would bring the total new revenue up to $1 billion.

The proposed $72.2 million annual increase in motor fund taxes came on top of an earlier request by the governor for the imposition of $266.6 million in general fund taxes, which may be hard for the legislature to swallow in the current session. Sen. Marvin V. Keller, R-Bucks, one of two legislators on the commission, said he believed the registration fee proposals would not be acted upon until the General Assembly had resolved the general fund financing.

"I doubt very much if the governor and the General Assembly would consider raising these fees prior to the satisfaction of the general fund budget," commented Keller, chairman of the Senate Highways Committee.

Keller's counterpart in the House, Rep. Raymond E. Wilt, R-Allegheny, posed several questions to Bartlett regarding the recommended increase in truck fees. Wilt is in the trucking business.

Bartlett said the 50 per cent increase on truck fees would not be across the board. He noted that the Revenue Department was making a study of the equity of current fees in the various weight categories.

"The department hopes to eliminate through legislation certain inconsistencies in present truck fees," Bartlett said. "All we are asking at this time is that the total revenue from such fees be raised 50 per cent."

In Philadelphia, the Keystone

Automobile Club-AAA of Philadelphia said in a statement that it opposes the proposed hike on car registration fees on grounds "the motorist is already paying more than his fair share of the cost of needed highway improvements."

In outlining financial needs, Bartlett listed $1.35 billion in proposed construction for the two-year period from 1971 to 1973. He allocated another $120 million for a safety improvement program to begin immediately and $30 million to cover cost escalation of projects included in the commission's initial six-year program through 1971.

"We need a total of $950 million in new revenue," Bartlett said. "Our proposed financing plan would bring in $1 billion. The excess is required as contingency to support such items as an increase in the State Police complement, expansion of the highway safety programs in conformance with federal requirements and future planning and early acquisition of rights of way."

Eighty-two per cent of the budget of the State Police is derived from the motor license fund and road user taxes with only 18 per cent coming from the general fund.

Jamestown Project Held Up by Strike

JAMESTOWN—Work on one Jamestown area project continues to be held up because of a lack of a contract between the union and the construction companies.

A picket line has been set up at the Jamestown Municipal Electric Plant on Steele street by local 7 of the Independent Brotherhood of Boiler Makers whose headquarters are in Buffalo. A strike was called Monday at the $3 million construction project when the union rejected a company offer.

Meanwhile Local 348 of the Bridge and Ornamental Iron Workers Union are considering a new contract proposal to replace the old contract which expired on May 31. Samuel Sackman of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation service said that work is continuing on several Jamestown area projects, in spite of the fact that the unions do not have a contract. Mr. Sackman said yesterday that it will not be known whether or not an agreement is reached until a meeting of the Iron Workers is held.

Some of the projects involved include the new Art Metal Plant on Baker street ext.,

the addition to Southwestern Central School and the Science and Engineering Building and Fine Arts Center at the Jamestown Community College.

In other labor management news the Plumbers and Steamfitters Union has been on strike for the past week following the expiration of their contract at midnight on May 31. It is not presently known when union management negotiations will continue.

Investments Declining, Experts Say

(c) N. Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON—Business investment in new plants and equipment will rise only 3 per cent this year over 1966, but will be heading up in the second half, the Commerce Department reported yesterday.

The 3 per cent increase for the year as a whole, to $62.4 billion, was slightly smaller than had been projected three months ago.

Yesterday's report revealed that the rate of investment in plant and equipment in the first and second quarters of this year actually declined from the level of the last quarter of 1966.

But if the projections reported by industry are confirmed, spending will return to the fourth-quarter rate in the third quarter of this year and will rise further to a record level in the last quarter.

Yesterday's survey had been eagerly awaited. In general, it does not change the government's projection of a sluggish economy in the first half and a strong rebound in the second. Business investment is a key element in total demand in the economy.

Gen. Walt Defends M-16 Rifle

(c) N. Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON—Lt. Gen. Lewis W. Walt, USMC, defended the controversial M-16 automatic rifle here yesterday as the "finest weapon" American fighting men have ever had.

The much decorated Marine combat veteran discounted recent charges in Congress that the new rifle is subject to frequent malfunctioning. He said that it was particularly valuable in Vietnam combat where enemy forces engage often in mass attacks against American troops.

Walt, who returned here a week ago after 10 years' duty in Vietnam, disclosed that a recent survey made by divisions commanders in the I Corps Area had indicated a "remarkable" record of efficiency by the M-16 rifle.

The firing of 13 million rounds by 12,676 M-16 rifles had disclosed only 1,234 malfunctions—an average of one malfunction for every 10,503 rounds, he said.

Pro-Peking Workers Halt Ferry

(c) N. Y. Times News Service
HONG KONG — Pro-Peking workers forced suspension of the main cross-harbor ferry service here yesterday in a new Communist move against British authorities.

It proved a major inconvenience, but Hong Kong continued to function normally and even held a quiet incident-free election for five vacancies on the Urban Council, a popular forum for budding politicians.

Crew members stopped work in protest against the removal by police of anti-British posters displayed on vessels of the Star Ferry Company. Police acted in accordance with new regulations banning inflammatory posters.

During recent disturbances, in which local Communists played key roles, Hong Kong was plastered with posters aimed at arousing mass opposition to the British authorities. Since the ban, police have removed most of the posters, but Communists have vowed to keep putting them up.

Thousands of residents who normally travel each day between the cities of Victoria on Hong Kong Island and Kowloon, on the strip of mainland China which is also part of this British colony, were affected by the ferry stoppage. But most of them were able to find alternate means of transport as the Hong Kong Yau Ma Tei Ferry Company continued to operate and small motorboats, called "wallah-wallahs," did a roaring trade—charging ten times the ferry fare for each passenger.

Beaver County Loses Water; 3 Towns Hurt

BEAVER, Pa. (AP) — Three Beaver County communities were hit with a water shortage yesterday because of a broken pump and a ruptured water line.

Employees of the Beaver Water Co. were re-filling a reservoir that had been drained for cleaning when a pump broke.

The situation was aggravated later when, according to Beaver police, a water line snapped at Vanport.

Authorities asked residents of Beaver Borough, Brighton Twp. and Borough Twp. to use water only for necessary household purposes until the trouble is corrected.

It's Graduation Day

This evening when the town clock strikes eight o'clock Warren County's five high schools will start commencement exercises for seven hundred and fifty young people who are taking another step closer to the challenge of the world today.

It is a joyous time. It is a sad time. It is a time of growing up, a time of decision. And with the state of the world such as it is today, it may well be called a time of confusion.

The issues ahead are many and varied—is it college? working in a shop and learning a trade? enlisting in the armed services? facing the draft or just seeing a little bit of the countryside before arriving at a decision?

These are just some questions facing the young man leaving high school today.

We cannot make the decisions for you young people. But we can ask you to be sincere in your thoughts about tomorrow. And to seek the opinions of those close to you whose wisdom you can benefit from.

Congratulations on your day. Good luck in your future—may it be happy and prosperous. But for your sake, and your loved ones, make this great occasion a happy and safe one.

Israel's Desert Victory

WASHINGTON — Israel has resorted to violence and won its victory. Among her friends and particularly those whose ties to her are of blood and the spirit, there can only be relief and exultation. Yet, victory is not necessarily settlement; and perhaps only as the battle ends will the enormity of what has happened come clear.

It ought to be realized first that the United Nations failed, the big powers failed, American guarantees failed, everything failed, to prevent war; so war came, men died and once again what Woodrow Wilson called "force, force without stint or limit" prevailed. And who knows what threatened or frustrated leader next will draw the lesson that his needs can most quickly be won at the point of a gun?

Nor will military triumph over the Arab states bring an end to their profound hostility toward Israel, or to the deep-seated Arab bitterness that festers on the conviction that the Western nations imposed the Jewish state on them unfairly and with callous disregard for their rights and feelings. Indeed, if anything could further have enflamed Arab hatreds on the question of Israel, the humiliating new defeat will have done it.

So smashing does the Israeli triumph appear to be that the fate of the Arab leaders, particularly Nasser of Egypt and Hussein of Jordan, is in doubt; after Nasser's posturing on the banks of Aqaba, it is difficult to see how he can survive such a collapse even in Egypt, much less as the herald of Pan-Arabism. Perhaps few will mourn Nasser, but Hussein had been considered here a force for stability in the Middle East, and it is by no means clear what new regimes ultimately may arise.

King Farouk gave way to the Egyptian army and Nasser after the Arab defeat of 1948; that was no gain for Israel and some new Egyptian leader might prove even more inflammatory and determined to restore the nation's tarnished pride. Whatever new order emerges in the Arab world also may be even more pro-Soviet than was Nasser. The latter's charges that the United States and Britain aided Israel will be believed widely by Arabs seeking a rationale for defeat, most of whom already condemn Washington as Israel's sponsor. And if the Soviets have not covered themselves with glory in the crisis, they have at least talked strongly on behalf of the Arabs.

These effects will be heightened by Israel's understandable intention to claim the spoils of military victory — passage through Suez and Aqaba, stronger border guarantees, territorial gains on the Jordanian border. A long Israeli presence in Sinai also has to be expected, particularly if the more hawkish elements in Tel Aviv now come to power.

Because of Israel's demonstrated military power in the Middle East and her demonstrated political support in the United States, it will be difficult for the Johnson administration to restrain these demands. Because the Administration failed to make good the guarantees given Israel concerning the Gulf of Aqaba after the 1946 war, it will be equally difficult for Washington to persuade Tel Aviv again to accept pledges of support as a substitute for positions of guaranteed power.

Yet there remain 40 million Arabs, sprawling across Africa into Asia, astride ancient East-West routes, identifying themselves not only with Moslems everywhere, but with all the peoples once exploited by Western colonialism (a theme upon which the Soviets have consistently played), controlling a vast share of the world's oil and therefore wielding considerable influence over Western economies—for instance, over the pound sterling. Even in defeat, they are neither negligible nor helpless.

With its influences among these people now virtually nil, with its ability to moderate Israeli demands on them at a low ebb, needing Soviet cooperation to make any peace arrangements credible and effective, the United States is in poor condition indeed to erect a new and stable political arrangement between Middle East antagonists, one of which is flushed with victory and the other of which is smoldering in new humiliation and new resentment.

Israel, it can hardly be doubted, acted only when she believed her threatening neighbors and reluctant friends had left her no choice. Yet, violence, as always, has raised new problems for every old question it may have decided. Men are dead in the lonely desert, but they have not brought peace to the Middle East.

The Arab Master Plan

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON—Arab strategy underlying recent events in the Middle East is not as senseless as it seems once we understand its hidden goals. These were defined four weeks ago in a secret meeting in Cairo. A transcript of that conference, now being clandestinely circulated here, is reprinted below:

"Kings, presidents, generals, colonels and oil-rich sheiks, it is time once again to do something about Israel. The floor is open for suggestions."

"I, Mustafa, suggest we all make speeches saying that Israel must be destroyed and then forget it for another year." (Cries of "hear, hear!" and "second the motion!")

"I, Gamal, seizer of Suez, tell my brother Mustafa that he speaks like a chicken. The time is ripe, the hour is struck. It is no longer sufficient to make speeches. It is time to score a diplomatic coup."

"Forgive me, o great seizer, bit I, Fuad, would like to score a diplomatic coup as much as my brothers Aoud and Selucid, those lackeys of colonialism to whose destruction I am pledged. Indeed, we have all suspended our pledges to each other's destruction in the hope that you, revered Gamal, might first enable us to share jointly in the great coup which you have promised. Tell us, then, what may be done."

"Well uttered, Fuad. The plan is this. After ordering the United Nations to withdraw from the Strait of Tiran, we shall announce a blockade and forbid shipping to pass through the Strait to Aqaba. We, and particularly I, Gamal, will be hailed far and wide as the scorers of a great diplomatic coup."

"May I, Mustafa, ask a question?"

"Speak, we are all brothers here until the great coup is scored and we can resume pledging each other's destruction."

"Is it not likely that if we blockade Aqaba the Israelis will become very angry?"

"Exactly, Mustafa. I, Gamal, say that you are beginning to see the light. The Israelis will become so very angry that they will want to fight."

"Ah, my beloved Gamal, then you have truly thought the coup through to the end. And knowing that the Israelis will want to fight, you have naturally planned a lightning war to strangle their arms before they can be mobilized."

"I Gamal, tell you with love in my heart, Mustafa, that you have the brain of a camel. Arabs have no desire to commit aggression. Before the Israelis can attack, the United Nations will take up the matter in the Security Council."

"What a pig I was not to have foreseen it, Gamal. And the United Nations will then intervene to render Israel impotent while we enjoy our great diplomatic coup."

"You, Mustafa, were overlooked by Allah when the cunning was being apportioned. The United Nations will be powerless to do anything. That will put the cream on the coup. We will have the whole world laughing at the futility of the United Nations," (cries of "magnificent!" and "he's greater than the Sphinx!")

"Forgive my stupidity, sweet brother, but I, Mustafa, a humble fool that I am, what is to keep the Israelis from attacking if we blockade Aqaba, fail to attack them first and do not receive the intervention of the United Nations?"

"As the densest sheep would perceive, dear Mustafa, there is absolutely nothing to keep Israel from attacking. That is the beautiful part. They will have to attack, and when they do, they will be exposed to the world as aggressors."

"If I, Fuad, may slip a word in edgewise, I presume it to be your plan, great straddler of Suez, that Israel will be lured into smashing your armies and destroying our air forces with amazing ease."

"I, Gamal, tell you, Fuad, that you have been blessed with vision to foresee the future."

"I, Mustafa, who have not, beg to be instructed further. Why is Israel to be lured into an easy victory?"

"Shame, Mustafa, even I, Selucid, can see the reason for that. Once the Israelis win, we can say that they could not have done it without American help. This will give us ground for punitive retaliation. We will break diplomatic relations with the United States, burn its embassies and, thus, expose it to the world as a colonial exploiter."

"Nobly uttered, noble utterer, and I, Gamal, remind you Mustafa, that when all this has come to pass, we shall then play our ace. We shall cut off our oil for the West!" (Prolonged applause and cries of "no tigers for the tanks of Yankee mummy stealers!")

"But, Gamal, answer this for your poor brother, Mustafa: if we cut off the oil, where will we get our money?"

"Enough questions, Mustafa! It is clear that you lack the Arab mind."

Road Getting Tougher

HARRISBURG — The road ahead for the Republican Shafer Administration is getting tougher and tougher.

It's beginning to show up now on the legislative front and before it gets better (if it does) it could get worse!

From a timeliness standpoint the fact was driven home this week with the absence of Senator William B. Lentz (Dauphin County) from his normal senatorial perch following his collapse in his office on Capitol Hill last Friday.

Administration Republicans hold only 26 seats in the Senate to begin with—the exact number required to clear legislation.

With the enforced absence of Senator Lentz, the thing grasp of Administration forces in the upper chamber vanishes into thin air.

Indications are Mr. Lentz soon will be back on Capitol Hill but this isn't the point. His enforced absence underscores what just one absence—one illness, for example—can do to shatter Shafer Administration forces literally before they get under way.

As matters stand now, the Administration can't even pass the biscuits in the upper chamber (aside from the in-absentia voting permitted on non-controversial legislation), to say nothing of any major Shafer Administration programs.

Moving across legislative corridors to the 203-seat House of Representatives the situation is even more precarious where 102 votes are required to pass biscuits and legislation—as for example Mr. Shafer's $266 million conglomerate tax program (to say nothing of his highly controversial income-tax-at-the-pleasure-of-the-Governor proposal he unexpectedly tossed in lawmaker's laps last week.)

While Administration Republicans have the strength to clear legislation — on paper — in the House, they do not in actual fact.

They hold 103 seats, as the official House roll shows—but in actuality there are two House Republican members on the heavy sick list who in all probability will not be back to Capitol Hill for some time.

This factor alone places House Republicans on exactly the same par as their counterparts in the Senate at the moment with the absence of Senator Lentz—one shy of the votes needed to pass legislation.

(All this is assuming the Republican blocs in the House and Senate stick together solidly, which in the House in particular oftentimes fails to materialize.)

On the other hand anti-Administration Democrats of course don't have the strength either to pass biscuits or even a few crumbs inasmuch as they are lower on the totem pole strengthwise than Republicans.

All of which means that if the present trend continues—or even the status quo—Mr. Shafer will have to rely on Democratic legislative support for every last legislative gem he has on the griddle.

The Governor however faces a tough row to hoe in gaining anti-Administration support from Democratic legislative blocs. For one thing, minority leadership seemingly is in a very irked and nettled mood over what they feel have been rebuff after rebuff on the part of Mr. Shafer of their efforts earlier in the session to work over legislation in a bipartisan manner. The feeling now among Democrats seems to be one of: when he had the votes within his own ranks earlier in the session, the question of working with Democrats was unimportant and unnecessary, something casual to be worked in if time permitted — which it rarely seemed to do, therefore let the Administration stew in its own juice.

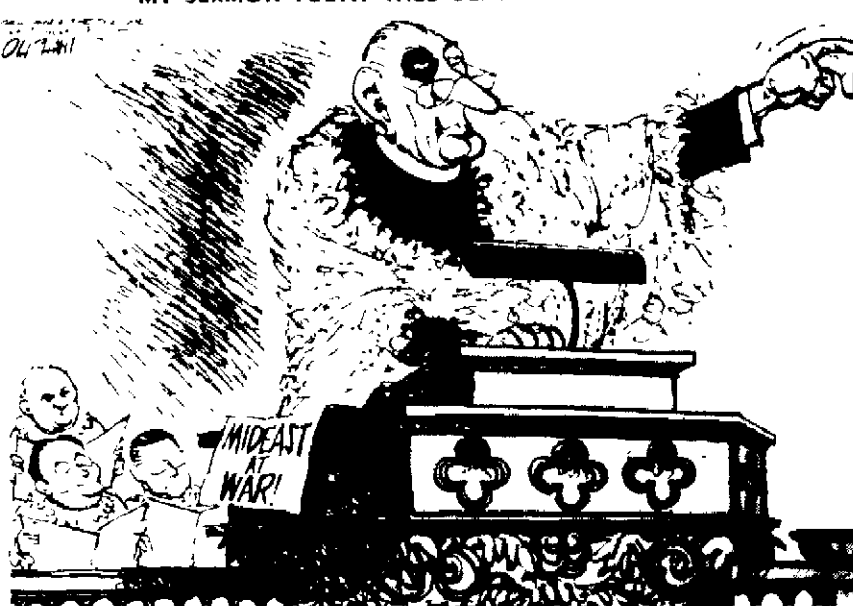

There may be quite a stew!

Administration Republicans hold only 26 seats in the Senate to begin with—the exact number required to clear legislation.

War Highlights Need for Oil

WASHINGTON — One development which didn't leak out of the April Summit Conference of Latin American presidents was a conversation between President Johnson and President Raul Leoni of Venezuela. They didn't realize it at the time, but their talk had direct bearing on what's now happening in the war-torn Near East.

President Leoni explained to President Johnson the importance of Venezuelan oil to the U.S. market and urged that Venezuela get the same quota treatment as Canadian and Mexican oil. These two countries, because of their immediate juxtaposition to the United States, get more favorable treatment than any other nation because they can ship oil without interruption in case of war.

However, with the Near East now in flames and oil shipments from the Arab countries certain to be cut off from the United States and Western Europe, the position of Venezuelan oil becomes even more important than when it was discussed at Punta del Este.

The United States itself produces 3,033 million barrels of petroleum yearly and imports 382 million barrels from the Near East. Canada supplies an additional 384 million barrels and the Dutch West Indies 321 million. But Venezuela sends the United States a huge total of 1,033 million barrels and is in a position to increase this in case Near East oil is cut off.

Even before war broke in the Near East, Nasser had threatened to close the Suez Canal if the United States took unfriendly steps against Egypt. This meant that no oil could have passed through the canal from Saudi Arabia, Iraq, Iran and Kuwait. Some oil flows direct from Iraq across Syria to the Mediterranean, but infuriated Arab workers one week ago had threatened to sabotage this pipeline.

While the United States can probably get along without Near East oil, it will have difficulty meeting the oil needs of Western Europe, largely dependent upon the Near East. Rumania and Poland, both Communist states, have been quite independent of Russia on the Arab question and doubtless could supply part of the Western deficit. But unless the Soviet Union wants to draw on its huge oil production in the Baku-Batum area, the rest of the European oil supply will have to come from Venezuela or the United States.

Meanwhile, President Leoni is certain to press Washington to get rid of the complicated quota system by which Venezuelan oil faces various discriminatory restrictions as against Canadian and Mexican oil. There are at least three good reasons why the United States will want to con-

After the Captivity

WASHINGTON—After the Babylonian captivity, when the Jewish remnant was rebuilding the walls of Jerusalem, "the Arabians and Ammonites and Ashodites" heard about this and "were very wroth and conspired all of them together to come and to fight against Jerusalem."

"Nevertheless," says the Prophet Nehemiah, who was the Chaim Weizmann of those days, we made our prayer unto God and set a watch against them day and night. . . and I looked, and a nd rose up, and said unto . . . the people, "Be ye not afraid of them: remember the Lord, which is great and terrible, and fight for your brethren, your sons and your daughters, your wives and your houses. . ."

"And it came to pass from that time forth that the half of my servants wrought in the work, and the other half of them held both the spears, the shields and the bows and the habergeons. . . They which builded on the wall, and they that bare burdens, with those that laded, every one with one of his hands wrought in the work, and with the other hand held a weapon. "For the builders, every one had his sword girded by his side, and so builded!"

Over the many centuries, in these words of Nehemiah, one hears again the echo and the forecast of the courage and self-denial and trust in the God of their fathers, by which the people of the state of Israel rebuilt, not just Jerusalem's walls, but a rich and hopeful Jewish nation. And once again, and for all the same reasons (among which an enduring sense of inferiority is not the least), the Arabs are "very wroth," and there is war.

During the year or so that this reporter mainly spent in the Middle East, after the 1966 Suez crisis, the proud and warlike book of Nehemiah always gave invaluable guidance. There were two other guides as well, but these, alas, were in flat conflict, one with the other.

consider Venezuela's petition carefully. They are: 1. Venezuela is by far the best U. S. customer in South America. Though it has only 9 million people, it buys a whopping $820 million worth from the United States; more than the combined purchases of both Brazil and Argentina with a population exceeding 100 million.

2. Venezuela has become the most vigorous democracy in South America and a political model for other Latin American countries. It has also become a strong ally of the United States against the threat of Castroism in the Caribbean.

3. Venezuela has led the continent in Alliance for Progress reforms. Its land reform is about 80 per cent complete while other Latin American countries are only beginning. Its education and social security programs are among the best in the world. The country's social and economic progress have so solidified popular support for democratic government that Castro's repeated attempts at bombing and revolution have completely fizzled.

Venezuela has been pressing other Pan American nations to do something about Castro.

How much of a part do tunnels still play in the Vietnam fighting was disclosed by Dr. Charles Herzfeld, Director of Advanced Research Projects for the Defense Department, at a meeting of the House Appropriations Committee. He said that the Viet Cong use tunnels very effectively, while the North Vietnamese fight like regular troops and don't use tunnels.

"Would you run into the tunnel problem in the delta, a flat country with a high water level?" inquired Rep. Robert Sikes, D-Fla.

"Yes, there the tunnels tend to be in the dikes of canals," replied Herzfeld. "Many of them are above the water level. They put one down in a few weeks. They impress the local population, so that everybody digs for a week or two."

REP. GEORGE ANDREWS, D-ALA. — "We read about tunnels in which our troops found hospital wards, dining rooms, and so on. Are these the older ones?"

HERZFELD — "Indeed, Operation Junction City has been unearthing very large complexes. Everybody thinks that that was really the headquarters of the Liberation Front, from which the war in the south was directed."

SIKES — "They found pictures of North Vietnamese generals and other accouterments you would expect to find in a major headquarters."

REP. GLEN LIPSCOMB, R-CALIF. — "They used tunnels when the French were there? Tunnels didn't come as a surprise to anybody?"

HERZFELD — "That is right, but a lot of people didn't read the French history and didn't understand what was going on."

SIKES — "Apparently a lot of people still don't."

Yet the theme of Runciman's second volume, on the kingdom of Jerusalem, is the gradually gathering strength of Arab resistance to this foreign intrusion into the Middle East. And the third volume's theme is the fall, one after another, of all the Crusaders' strongholds in Syria and Palestine.

The last stronghold, the Templars' mighty castle at Ruad, struck its colors in 1303. And thereafter nothing remained but the Lusignan kingdom of Cyprus, where the ladies of the court put on black cloaks in sign of mourning "for the death of Outremer."

Runciman preaches, in sum, that intrusions into the Middle East do not endure. Yet it always seemed to me that there was far more to be learned from Josephus' "History of the Jews." And the lesson of Josephus is quite simply that when the Jewish people are defending the land of their fathers they can never, never be defeated unless the mightiest empire on this earth brings against their few poor thousands the full weight of its terrible resources.

To put down the Jewish revolt, the Emperor Vespasian sent his son Titus at the head of such a force as Rome usually reserved for her wars with the Parthian empire—three of Rome's iron legions, 24 cohorts of auxiliaries and six ALAE of cavalry.

Yet the fighting lasted four long years. A dwindling band held Jerusalem against all the might of Rome for two full years; and after Jerusalem's fall, in 70 A.D., the last survivors defended King Herod's great fortress of Masada for three years more, until A.D. 73. And Gamal Abdel Nasser, one must emphatically add, bears no resemblance whatever to Titus or Vespasian.

With all Rome's power to aid him, Titus was finally able to carry the ark of the covenant and the temple's seven-branched candelsticks through the streets of Rome in triumph. (One can see the candelsticks on his triumphal arch.)

Runaway Tourist Exodus

You are now on your way, Mr., Mrs. and Miss America, as a member of the greatest tourist exodus from the U.S. in our entire history. Despite a variety of depressing factors—ranging from the Vietnam war conflict and the Middle East crisis to this winter's economic slowdown and the outlook for income tax increases—you are flying and sailing out to every part of the compass on a scale which foretells a runaway boom in 1967.

You will complain about the crowding, snarl at the service, rebel against the red tape. But wherever you're heading and whatever your gripes, your dollars will travel with you.

In 1967 you probably will hand over an all-time peak $3.8 billion to foreign carriers and foreign businessmen.

But while you swarm outside our borders, your counterparts among foreign men and women have no intention of entering our borders on anything close to the scale of your exodus.

In 1967 we probably will take in no more than $1.6 billion from foreign visitors to the U.S.

The result is likely to be a "travel gap" of $2 billion this year, the worst in our history. In fact, estimates James G. Morton, special assistant to Commerce Secretary Trowbridge, say "This $2 billion headache may equal or exceed the total deficit in the U.S. balance of payments."

A travel deficit of this magnitude cannot be permitted to go on indefinitely. As New York Republican Senator Jack Javits warns, "Time is running out. If we cannot deal with our travel deficit through positive measures, then we will have no alternative but to consider the imposition of restrictions on travel, which would result in damaging consequences."

To date, our official attitude has been not to try to reduce the outflow of U.S. tourist dollars but to try to increase the influx of foreign tourist dollars.

But again to quote Javits, "Absence of restraint is not a policy," and our efforts to attract foreign tourists have been shockingly inadequate. What I wrote in 1966 is even more true in 1967: We are being out-promoted, out-advertised and out-served on tourism by nations a fraction of our size, with a fraction of our resources and appeal, with a fraction of the stake we have in balancing our international accounts.

ITEM: The fledgling U.S. Travel Service, created in 1961, has an annual budget of only $3 million with which to service the entire world. Stamp-sized countries have tourism budgets which dwarf ours. Congress has refused to appropriate even the $4.7 million a year allowed by the law. Its budget action in 1967 may force the U.S.T.S. to cut back on advertising, close street-level travel offices in several key cities abroad.

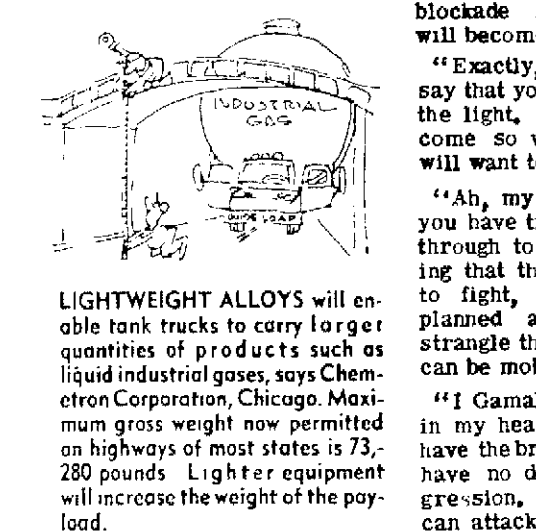

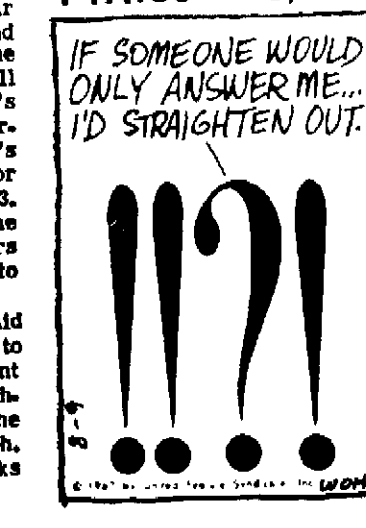

ITEM: Back in February President Johnson called for a special Industry - Government Task Force to develop a program for stimulating foreign travel by May 1. It is June—and the President hasn't even appointed the Task Force's members.

ITEM: Various private segments of the travel industry are working on their own to spur tourism here and such fine slogans as "Discover America" and "See the U.S.A." have been created. But there is little industry-wide cooperation to back up the slogans and even less coordination between private industry and the government.

Yet every $1 spent on travel becomes as much as $3 as it moves through our economy. In Morton's words, "Every dollar is new money to a city or locality. It takes none of the natural resources of the area away while it adds capital for development."

Against the background of our tourism problem and promise, the failures of the administration and Congress to act positively can only be condemned as inexcusable negligence.

Rookie No More

Sam Jethroe is not the first, best or last ex-major leaguer to play in Warren, but his appearance here last Sunday brought out a few fans who normally would have watched the Yankees on television.

Now 45 years old, Jethroe was 28 when the old Boston Braves brought him up from Montreal in 1950, definitely no spring chicken. He hit .273 in 141 games for the Beantowners and was the National League's Rookie of the Year.

The following season, Jethroe rapped the ball at a .280 clip, then dipped to .232 in 1952 and the Braves sent him back to the minors. Pittsburgh picked him up in 1954 and he appeared in only two games for the Buccos and failed to collect a basehit.

Nicknamed "Jet", he had plenty of speed in those days (30 stolen bases in '50) and was a fair-to-middlin' outfielder.

Nowadays, he's no real threat on the basepaths, but still gets in his licks at the plate, you never lose the eye. As a pitcher, however, he makes a darn good outfielder.

Beverage rapped him pretty good in the second game of the twinbill, but the atmosphere surrounding Sam's five innings on the mound was truly unique.

Usually when a club starts stinging a hurler pretty good or he gets wild and walks a couple, the bench opens up on him with a string of well-worn phrases designed to shake him a little more.

The Beveragemen, out of respect for the old war-horse, uttered nary a word, not under instruction from manager Bill LaRosa, but because everyone knew you don't ride a man who has made his mark in the game.

An ironical situation occurred in the opener of the twinbill when Jethroe collected two hits in four at-bats off Beverage hurler Roy Swanson. Sam was the NL's top rookie the year that Swanson was born.

If there's another opportunity to see Jethroe play this season, don't miss it.

STEELE SHAVINGS - Dick Lumley has announced his resignation as head wrestling coach at Meadville High School. He will assume the same post at Keystone Oaks High School in the WPIAL next season.

Lumley compiled a 39-10 mark in four years at the Bulldog helm, including a pair of key victories over the Dragons. Among his top individual grapplers were Tim Furno, Ron Johnson and Dave Coccolin.

Listing lack of a feeder system and dissatisfaction with his pay and teaching position as the reason for his leaving, Lumley is pushing Jim LaScola, his assistant, as his successor.

Penn State lists All-East safetyman Tim Montgomery and John Kulka, both of Kane, as starters for the Nittany Lions during the '67 grid season. Kulka will play offensive left tackle and his younger brother, George, is the number two tight end.

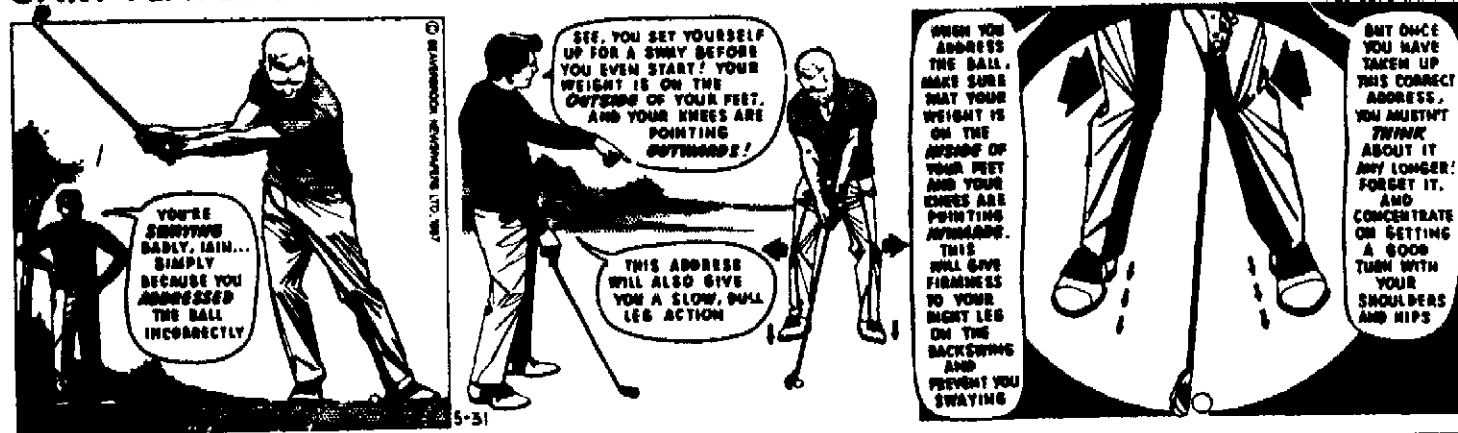

Carl Anderson, ex-Franklin quarterback, will play behind split end Jack Curry and Jack Sain of St. Marys is the second string offensive right tackle.

Joe Paterno has also moved All-America middle guard Mike Reid to linebacker and switched ex-Butler star Bill Rettig to the same position from fullback. Red is recovering from a knee operation that kept him out of spring drills.

Center Bill Lenkaitis and middle guard Jim Litterelle will be State's co-captains for the coming season.

Sixteen starters return from the '66 season, eight on offense and eight on defense. Six have already won two monograms.

Orioles Nab Day's Prize As Draft Sets New Mark

By JACK HAND
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Baltimore grabbed off the prize plum in the secondary phase of baseball's free agent draft yesterday when the Orioles chose John Michael Adamson, a 19-year-old right-handed pitcher from the University of Southern California as the No. 1 pick.

Adamson, originally selected by the Philadelphia Phillies, but unsigned, is a 6-foot-3, 195-pound sophomore from San Diego, Calif., who rated at or near the top of the list on most of the 20 big league scouting reports.

Walter Shannon, director of scouting for the world champion Orioles, said Adamson was "a big strong fellow with great stuff who was considered an outstanding prospect." It was expected the Orioles would come up with a sizeable bonus to sign the pitcher.

The secondary phase of the draft followed the so-called regular phase in which a record 975 amateurs, mostly high school boys, were selected by the 20 teams and their minor league affiliates.

The previous high was 833, picked last June. Counting the 194 taken in the secondary phase, a total of 1,169 players was selected in the two-day session.

In the regular phase the New York Yankees, who had first pick on their 10th place finish in 1966, also had the last selection. Johnny Johnson, head of the farm system, and his staff outlasted Cincinnati and Los Angeles in a marathon that finally went 74 rounds.

The Yanks, who took first baseman Ron Blomberg of Druid Hills High School of Atlanta as their No. 1 pick Tuesday, selected Donald Van Deusen, a 22-year-old shortstop from Concord College of Athens, W. Va., as the 975th and last. It was the second year the Yanks had the last pick.

Last June's final selection, Matt Galanta of St. John's University in New York, is hitting .313 for Greensboro, N.C., in the Carolina League.

The drafts give the clubs the rights to negotiate with the player until the next drafting period, probably in January. If a player does not sign he goes back into the pool.

Although collegians are exempt until they are graduated or reach the age of 21, collegians selected in earlier drafts and thus picked again in the secondary phase are eligible for signing.

Of the 20 players picked by the major league teams in the secondary draft, nine were pitchers, including four left-handers, five were outfielders and four were shortstops. There was one catcher and one first baseman.

The order of selection in the secondary phase had been determined by lot. Hence, Baltimore was first and the New York Mets last.

The Chicago Cubs, next in line behind Baltimore, picked Randy Bobb, 19-year-old catcher from Sunland, Calif., and Arizona

LA, TORONTO ARGUE OVER RED KELLY

Players Association OK'd By National Hockey Loop

MONTREAL (AP) - A new National Hockey League players' association received the blessing of NHL club owners yesterday while controversial Jack Kent Cooke of Los Angeles' expansion franchise stuck to his guns in a tug-of-war with Toronto over Maple Leaf veteran Red Kelly.

Player representatives from the six established NHL teams announced the formation of a formal organization to represent sent players on all 12 clubs in the expanded league.

R. Allen Eagleson, the Toronto attorney who negotiated Bobby Orr's $50,000 bonus contract and represented Springfield players during their American Hockey League revolt against Eddie Shore last winter, was named the executive director of the new association.

"Our goal is to better conditions—not to put a gun to the heads of the owners," said Eagleson.

He said there was no present plan to bring the NHL players into a super association with players' groups representing other professional team sports.

Charles Mulcahy, Boston Bruins vice president and the chairman of an owners committee, created to bargain with the players, said the moguls welcome the formation of Eagleson's group.

"The owners realize steps were being taken to form a players' association—and they fully approved of it," Mulcahy said.

Cooke, meanwhile, continued to press his charge that Toronto reneged on a tacit agreement before Tuesday's expansion draft that would have freed Kelly to take the coaching job at Los Angeles.

TRIPLEHEADER SATURDAY NIGHT

Rosters Announced For Oldtimer Game

The Youngsville Oldtimers-Warren Old-Timers benefit softball game will be played Saturday night, and not Sunday night as announced earlier this week.

The contest will be sandwiched between a Warren Beverage-Hunter's Inn of Erie exhibition twinbill at Carbon Memorial Field to provide a full "menu" of softball for local fans.

The Beveragemen will take the field at 5:45 p.m. for the opener, then it's drag out the liniment and warm up the crutches as the rocking chair set takes over at the diamond at about 7:30. The second Beverage-Hunter's contest will follow.

The local veterans proudly carry a 9-1 exhibition record into the game, while the fledgling Youngsville club, if these has-beens can be called fledglings, has lost their only outing since being formed this spring.

The Warren oldsters will field some great old, and a few not-so-great old, softball and baseball veterans, with a sprinkling of "ringers" thrown in.

to finish out the game when the older generation drops from exhaustion.

Genuine ex-diamond stars who will take their rusty-gate swings for the locals include Honey Font, Louie Vizra, Jack Morrison, Monk Murphy, Warren Check, Paul Johnston Sr., Paul Pollock, Tony Tomasoni and Red Lucia.

The comparative youngsters on the squad, all of whom deny they're ready for the Old Ball-players' Home, include Bill Brown, Gen Sweet, Big Bill Massa, Ang Regina, Jack White, Rico Bonavia and Bob Schenck.

Huffing and puffing for the Youngsville nine will be John Maggio, Bill Shine, Ralph Wile, Tony Spear, Norris Freeborough, Dick Woodcock, Smokey Bennett, Bill Unterreiner and Bill Barr.

Also running down poppies, although with less zip than they did a few seasons ago, will be Chuck Irwin, Ray Peterson, Bob Harrison and Don Mohny.

The game will go nine innings, or seven if bedtime rolls around for this bunch of reprobates, or maybe until one team is unable to limp off the bench to take the field, which could be after three frames.

Just in case too many stretcher cases develop, the cry is out for all "Old-Timers," 35 or over it says here, to show up with glove in hand to lend assistance to both teams.

A donation will be accepted from the fans attending to be deposited to the field's lighting fund, or for smelling salts, whichever is the greater emergency.

Pro Cagers Win Fight For Pension

CHICAGO (AP) - National Basketball Association owners and the league's players association yesterday agreed to a pension plan that will give a 10-year veteran a $600 per month returned for life at the age of 65.

Players from the NBA's 12 clubs, headed by Oscar Robertson, star of the Cincinnati Royals and representative for all the players, met with club owners for approximately an hour and amicably settled the once-controversial pension plan.

Commissioner Walter Kennedy, who was awarded a five-year contract with a reported $10,000 salary increase to $60,000, said the plan affected all players on the list as of Feb. 2, 1967.

The prime action at the opening of the NBA's two-day annual meeting appeared to be a victory for the players who had threatened to strike the NBA playoffs last season unless pension demands were met.

Kennedy emphasized that the pension program specifies that any player who breaches a contract by jumping to another league will forfeit all benefits.

This obviously is aimed at the new American Basketball Association which currently is warring with the NBA for player talent.

Kennedy said the pension would be funded by a contribution of $350,000 per year by the current 12 clubs with each player contributing an additional $400 each annually.

Kennedy said the agreement affords certain disability benefits and an approximate $20,000 per player life insurance policy during his active career.

Kennedy, who stressed that the owners were not pressured into the new pension program by the threatened player strike, said club contributions would come entirely out of operating revenues.

He pointed out that this differs from pro football and baseball which sustains pension programs on television revenue from All-Star games and post-season playoffs.

The old NBA pension fund which was under fire by the players afford a 10-year veteran approximately $200 a month after age 65, but only for a 10-year period.

TRUCK DRIVER HAS NEAR MISS

The driver of this truck narrowly escaped death or injury yesterday when the brakes on his vehicle failed on a steep incline at Means Lumber Yard, 2017 Pennsylvania ave. E. The driver, unidentified, jumped clear as the truck jackknifed over a small embankment into a utility pole. The trailer of the truck then flipped over hitting a truck owned by the Tionesta Sand and Gravel Co. Penelec crews were called to cut the power and remove the damaged utility pole. Damage to the out of state truck appeared to be extensive. No one was injured. There was no police investigation. (Photo by Mansfield)

Rail Strike Headed Off By Senate

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — The Senate yesterday passed President Johnson's bill to prevent a nationwide strike by railroad shop workers. The vote was 70 to 15. The Senate acted after defeating efforts by pro-labor forces to make major amendments that would have provided for seizure of industry profits.

The bill was sent to the House where the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee will take up the measure in executive session today.

Administration sources said they expected a close vote on the bill in the House committee. They said they thought they could get the measure through the committee, and expressed confidence that it would pass the House easily.

The President's bill would block a railroad shutdown for 90 days while a five-member board sought a voluntary settlement between the carriers and six unions representing 137,000 shopcraft workers.

U.S. Working on Middle East Peace

By MAX FRANKEL

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — President Johnson pledged yesterday to do his best to help translate the new Middle East situation into a more lasting settlement between Israel and her Arab neighbors.

Apparently hoping to exploit Israel's lightning military success—which has surprised but not displeased the White House—Johnson ordered the drafting of special policy plans for a "new peace" and created new government machinery to deal with the crisis.

The President said that the United States had worked hard to avoid the war but nonetheless feels that "there is now a real chance" to turn from "the frustrations of the past to the hopes of a peaceful future."

Johnson's brief public statement after a meeting of the National Security Council was a toned down version of the analyses offered in private by his advisers.

They acknowledge that the war has probably inflamed passions and made many Arabs more hostile toward Israel than ever before. Yet, they also see some hope that the war and its outcome will persuade some Arab nations and perhaps the Soviet Union that there is no alternative to the full acceptance of Israel and to the creation of international arrangements to keep the peace and to promote the economy of the entire region.

The handling of the present crisis and preparation for a lasting settlement will require the most careful consideration in the U.S. government, the President said. To organize that effort, he recalled Mr. George Bundy to temporary duty at the White House as executive secretary to a special subcommittee of the National Security Council.

The Nineteenth Amendment on Aug. 26, 1920, granted suffrage to women.

Building Strikes Still Grow

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The 2,000 members of Ironworkers Local 3 voted yesterday to walk off the job at midnight, bringing to nine the number of building trades unions on strike in three states.

However, some ironworkers will be on the job at projects run by independent contractors. The local signed up the independents to accept whatever contract would work out with the Ironworkers Employees Association.

A little progress was reported in two of the craft unions involved in the strike, which has idled 25,000 men in Western Pennsylvania, parts of Ohio and West Virginia.

Angelo Carboni, business agent for the Pittsburgh Building Trades Council, said the roofers and stonemasons reached agreement with contractors on some issues. He had no details.

Carpenters met with contractors in the first negotiating in a week.

Besides the roofers, stone masons, and ironworkers, also on strike in the tri-state district are the boilermakers, operating engineers, carpenters, painters, labors, and brick-masons.

Carboni said most unions are aiming at improved working conditions.

Footprints, some 160 million years old, are among the sights to be seen when visiting Rocky Hill State Park, Rocky Hill, Conn. The tracks are described as the footprints of a dinosaur known as Anchisauripus, a denizen of the Triassic Period. They were uncovered by a bulldozer excavating for a highway department laboratory.

Seven Arab Nations Break Relations With United States

(c) N. Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — A mounting number of Arab and African countries broke diplomatic relations with the United States yesterday in response to Egyptian charges that American planes had assisted the Israeli attack.

The State Department sought to minimize the diplomatic damage caused by the Arab-Israeli war by holding out the possibility that some form of official relations could be maintained despite the formal breaks.

By the end of the day, a total of seven countries—the United Arab Republic, Algeria, Sudan, Syria, Iraq, Yemen and Mauritania—had officially informed the U.S. that they were severing diplomatic relations. As required by diplomatic protocol the U.S. responded by announcing it was withdrawing its diplomatic representation.

From Beirut it was reported that Lebanon had decided to join the list of Arab or African countries with large Moslem populations breaking relations with the U.S., as well as Britain. No official notification was immediately received from the Lebanese government, but the expectation within the State Department was that the total would not stop with seven or eight countries.

The State Department spokesman, Robert J. McCloskey, said the U.S. "regrets" the decision of the countries to break diplomatic relations with the U.S., particularly since their actions "apparently are based on a misrepresentation of the U.S. role in the Mideast conflict."

The U.A.R. was the first to break diplomatic relations after charging that American and British planes had assisted Israeli forces in the attack on Egypt.

The charge has been emphatically denied by the U.S., as well as Britain. But it was becoming increasingly obvious to American officials that the charge, basically viewed as a face-saving alibi by U.A.R. President Gamal Abdel Nasser for his defeat by Israel, was gaining considerable credence and political force within the Arab world.

At a meeting with African ambassadors to explain the U.S. position in the Middle East crisis, Eugene V. Rostow, under secretary of state for political affairs, used the occasion to deny once again that American planes had been involved in any way in the conflict.

Sentenced As Spy

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — Herbert W. Broeckenhaupt, 24, a German-born Air Force staff sergeant, was sentenced yesterday to 30 years in prison on charges of conspiring to provide U.S. defense secrets to the Soviet Union.

AN AP ANALYSIS

Mideast's War Changes World

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Israel's swift humiliation of the combined forces of Arabdom promises changes in the leadership of the Middle East and a heavy impact upon patterns of world power politics.

Neither Americans nor Russians could claim to have come out ahead, in Arab eyes, from this week's dramatic events, and the Middle East is likely to be on the verge of a period of internal uproar which could end Gamal Abdel Nasser's reign as the symbol of Arab aspirations.

Washington, Moscow, London and Paris all can be expected now to undertake searching reappraisals of their policies, taking into consideration prospective changes in the world picture after the Arab-Israeli war.

The United States faces bitterness and hostility from Arab nations rich in oil and astride strategic waterways. The Arabs choose to believe that the United States and Britain helped the Israelis to humble Arab arms.

The Russians, too, face trouble. So far as Egypt and Syria were concerned, Soviet arms, purchased at a severe strain on their economies, were cut to pieces by the Israelis. To the Arab way of thinking, the Russians probably will be judged to have let them down by withholding more direct support.

The Arabs seemed to try to lure Moscow into greater involvement. Some interpret the charge of U.S. and British air support for Israel as an indication of this. But Moscow hewed to a line of caution, failing even to report the Arab charge in its own press in 24 hours after the charge was voiced.

The Russians must feel more or less obliged now to make appropriate sounds, to condemn Israel as an "aggressor" and to make demands on the Arabs. If any major nation emerged unscathed, it was France. But Arabs know that French popular sentiment and French-built planes were on Israel's side. They still harbor anger at France for its association with Britain and Israel in the Suez war of 1956. President Charles de Gaulle managed to steer clear of a French commitment this time. His stock now might rise among the Arabs.

Moscow seemed to find it expedient to hedge its bets. So long as the crisis did not erupt into war, Soviet policy could make gains with the Arabs. When war came and the Arabs started taking a drubbing, Moscow went along with a Security Council resolution calling for a cease-fire. At least for the moment Moscow dropped its insistence that positions of June 4, the eve of the war, be restored.

The Soviet Union had problems. It wanted to maintain foreign policy gains made in Europe in recent times. Involvement in the risk of a showdown with the Americans in the Middle East would, at the least, bring back the arctic temperatures of the cold war and set the Russians back in Europe.

The Kremlin may consider steering clear of its Arab protégés for a while, to let the dust settle. If this proves the case, Egypt's Nasser will be all the more weakened.

Whatever happens, radical changes seem likely in the Middle East itself. Not only Nasser, but other Arab leaders are in danger—notably young King Hussein of Jordan, the first to sue for a cease-fire.

(c) N. Y. Times News Service
JERUSALEM—Israeli troops wept and prayed yesterday at the foot of the Wailing Wall—the last remnant of Solomon's Temple and the object of Jewish pilgrimages for centuries.

In battle dress and still carrying their weapons, they gathered at the base of the sand-colored wall and sang the Hallel, a series of prayers reserved for occasions of great joy.

They were repeating a tradition that goes back 2,000 years but has been denied Jews since 1948, when the war with the Arabs ended with the sacred wall inside the Jordanian sector.

The wall is believed to be the remains of the western side of the Temple of Solomon, first built in the 10th Century BC and destroyed by the Romans in 70 AD.

The soldiers arrived at the wall minutes after sweeping unopposed into the Old City, where the most revered sites of Islam, Christianity and Judaism are located.

They were joined quickly by the Israeli army chief chaplain, Rabbi Shlomo Goren, and the deputy mayor of Israeli Jerusalem, Rabbi Shear-Yashuv Cohen, who was the last Israeli soldier to be evacuated from the Old City in 1948.

Goren carried with him a shofar (ram's horn) and a Torah the parchment scroll on which are written the first five books of the Old Testament.

"I made this Torah in 1948," he said, clutching it with both arms against his chest. "I had it with me in Sinai in 1956 and I carried it into Gaza with the troops yesterday."

"We are now realizing the dreams of the Jews for two thousand years," he said excitedly. "We are entering the Messianic era. We shall never leave this place."

A few hours after the Old City was taken, Premier Levi Eshkol visited the wailing wall.

"It is a great and historic privilege for me to stand here at this hour, beside the Western Wall, the relic of our sacred Temple and our historic past," he said.

"I regard myself as the representative of the entire people, of many generations of our people, whose souls have yearned for Jerusalem and its sanctity."

Later, after meeting with the leaders of the city's religious communities Eshkol issued a statement saying that "no harm

McNamara Says Flow Of Oil Shall Continue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara ordered into immediate effect yesterday contingency plans "that will assure a full and uninterrupted flow of petroleum products to Vietnam and everywhere else U.S. armed forces are deployed."

He said that despite any cutoff of supplies by Arab nations, the Pentagon will make certain that all defense petroleum requirements "will be met fully and promptly and that military operations in Southeast Asia will be continued without interruption."

"To the extent that petroleum cannot be procured in the Middle East," McNamara said, "increased purchases will be made from Gulf Coast, West Coast and Caribbean refineries."

The Family of Israel

(c) N. Y. Times News Service
TEL AVIV—The military victory of Israel, starting in its speed and efficiency, is not as impressive as the spirit that produced it in this moment of her history. With the old city of Jerusalem back in its control Israel is not only a nation but a family.

Reston

It is not hard to imagine their soldiers in the desert. They are only the military symbol of the national spirit. The people in the street, the chamberlains, the taxi drivers and —so help me—even the censors have this same combination of ferocious concentration on the war.

They know the significance of every major town in the campaign and when Sharm El Sheikh fell to their troops yesterday, the announcement at a news conference was greeted with an unobjective roar of grateful excitement.

What explains this extraordinary Israeli achievement? Every major western embassy is now engaged in trying to tell this story and though it is obviously too early to report the details they seem to agree on the following outline of the major factors.

The Israelis lost the first round in the conflict, which was political and diplomatic. In all their conflicts with the Arabs they have had three advantages:

Their capacity to mobilize within 72 hours, much faster than their adversaries, the element of the sudden and surprise attack and the disunion of the Arab states.

In the last two weeks of May, while they were trying to cooperate with Washington, London, Paris and the United Nations, the Israelis threw all this away. They let Nasser get rid of the U.N. forces at the critical points on the Arab-Israeli frontiers. They waited while he mobilized and negotiated Egyptian command of Jordanian forces on their most vulnerable frontier, and they got involved in a time-consuming legalistic argument over their rights to free passage through the Gulf of Aqaba to Elath.

Nasser, however, apparently misjudged his advantage. The evidence of uncertainty in Israel and even division was perfectly clear. The cabinet was divided on how to react to the Arab challenge. The press in Tel Aviv and Jerusalem reflected these divisions. The major powers were pressing for delay and negotiation and Foreign Minister Abba Eban was dispatched to the west to get help.

What he got was sympathy, advice to be patient and promises of a future effort by the major maritime powers to exercise their right to passage through the Gulf of Aqaba at some time after due consultation had taken place at the United Nations and the various maritime capitals.

One reason for the delay here, incidentally, was the suspicion that maybe the Soviet Union was in back of all these maneuvers and the fear of involving this small and vulnerable country in a major conflict involving the great powers. Six members of the Israeli cabinet were born in Russia and seven in Poland and Premier Levi Eshkol is said to have been impressed by the dangers of a violent Soviet response to any military initiatives by Israel.

It was at this point, according to well-informed officials, both in the embassies and the Israeli government, that the apprehensions of the people and the vigorous warnings of Defense Minister Moshe Dayan, Minister of Labor Yigal Alon and others inside and outside the government began to influence people in this country who blame the death of six million Jews in the last World War on the policy of appeasement followed at that time by Britain, France and the United States.

This point was made in the debates here during the diplomatic pause and Eshkol was told in plain and sometimes even violent language that every day's delay in dealing with the Arab buildup on the Israeli border would have to be redeemed by hundreds and maybe even thousands of Israeli casualties.

STATE PROFS AUTHOR BOOK

On Man's Aggression

(Penn State News)

In an age where man has the knowledge and potential to destroy all forms of human life, understanding of what makes him react in a consistent and characteristic way is vital.

Such is the foundation of the new book, "Attitude, Ego-Involvement and Change," by Drs. Muzaffer and Carolyn Sherif, the husband-and-wife team in social psychology from The Pennsylvania State University.

Based on papers delivered by 13 eminent scholars at a special symposium at Penn State in May, 1966, the Sherifs ask such questions as "why is he for or against," "why is his response favorable or unfavorable."

"Differences in attitudes among various peoples are not issues to be treated with the detachment or aloofness that has represented academic orthodoxy in the past," the pair contend.

Instead, the emphasis should be on how various groups of people conceive of their ways of life, their ways of doing things, their stands on the family and on social, religious, economic and political issues and how they view the ways and stands of others.

The Sherifs' new book deals exactly with this problem—the differing beliefs, values, ways of life and ideologies of various human groups and societies.

Published by John Wiley and Sons of New York, N.Y., the vital collection of papers does not cover all the major topics of attitudes and attitude-change, nor has any effort been made to represent all the rival theories dealing with them.

"The authors presuppose that readers will look for continuities and inconsistencies, in order to appraise for themselves the ragged lines of progress and the gaps of ignorance that characterize current efforts in attitude theory and research," the publishers write in their description of the book.

Dr. Muzaffer Sherif is professor of sociology at Penn State and director of the University's Psychosocial Studies program; his wife is associate professor of psychology.

ON-THE-SCENE-REPORT

Mauldin at Israeli Front

(Editorial cartoonist, Bill Mauldin, was the only newsman at the Israeli front when war came to the Middle East.

Two years ago, he was the only journalist on the U.S. base at Pleiku, Vietnam, when the Viet Cong struck there, killing eight Americans and wounding more than 100 more.

The Middle East conflict is the fourth war covered by the two-time winner of the Pulitzer prize, who won fame during World War II as the creator of the fictional GIs Willie and Joe. His poignant portrayals in words and pictures also helped bring the Korean War into better focus for his followers.

The accompanying story is in the typical, lucid Mauldin manner. But he sent the following cablegram to The Sun Times, expressing his concern over being unable to stay clear of the inevitable war-enforced red tape:

"Unable move photos (of) infantry at Sinai because airlines cancelled . . . Will do best I can . . . Most frustrating experience (of) my life to be only man where it started and be evicted from scene because no civilians allowed. . . . Filled all I could say this morning . . . Will now stop crying and start looking for new copy . . . Tell family I'm fine. . . . Bill Mauldin."

Gen. Walt Recommends More Troop Commitments in Viet

(c) N. Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — Lt. Gen. Lewis W. Walt disclosed here yesterday that he has recommended that more American troops be sent to stiffen the defenses of the I Corps comprising the five northernmost provinces of South Vietnam.

Walt, who served as senior U.S. commander in I Corps for two years until his return here last week, said there are now 123,500 U.S., South Korean and Australian troops in the area, including 74,000 American Marines. In addition there are two South Vietnamese divisions. He declined, however, to specify how many more additional forces he had recommended.

In a news conference at the Pentagon, the 53-year-old combat veteran of World War II, Korea and Vietnam expressed "optimism" about the course of the Vietnam conflict, especially in the northern area near the Demilitarized Zone. "I don't say that carrying out our objectives in the area is going to be accomplished without problems, or in a short period of time," he said. "But I do say that we are headed in the right direction. We are making progress and I'm confident of the outcome."

Citing recent victories by troops under his command, Walt said that North Vietnamese forces totalling three divisions which had invaded through the DMZ in a bid to take over Quang Tri Province—the northernmost province of South Vietnam—between February 12 and June 1 had been repeatedly and severely repulsed.

Enemy losses in I Corps during that period had totalled 30,000 including dead, probably dead, prisoners and defectors, he said. The enemy had also been severely repulsed.

Recent prisoner interrogations indicated that the North Vietnamese forces now retain little hope of a military victory, he said. However, he added, they continue fighting in hopes that the western world would eventually tire of the struggle.

In response to questions, Walt said that a battleship would be of "great value" in helping reduce enemy artillery and other emplacements along the coast. These, he pointed out, are often protected by reinforced concrete and are built to withstand hits from 2,000 pound bombs.

Cairo Said Gripped With Fear

By DENNIS NEELD
CAIRO (AP) — Much of Cairo was gripped with fear as Egypt's forces started withdrawing before Israel's advance last night.

Troops dug in around the city's perimeter and at strong points on the Nile bridges. More were reported digging in along the Nile Valley, 40 miles west of the Suez Canal.

A crowd of several thousand Arabs, many of them close to hysteria, milled around Cairo's main railroad station when rumors swept the capital that a trainload of Israeli prisoners was on its way from the battle-front.

Foreign newsmen who went to the station were manhandled and refused admittance.

Egyptian soldiers, tired, bedraggled and unshaven, rolled into town from the front to be greeted by wildly cheering crowds. The troops were in battle dress and steel helmets and some of their trucks towed field kitchens.

Excited Arab youths clamored on their vehicles to hug and kiss and slap them on the back.

Other troops took up positions under the Nile bridges and along stretches of the river. Rifle-toting Home Guards some in civilian clothes, others in military uniform and steel helmets, patrolled the tense streets. Most shops remained open and there was a run of food supplies.

Scores of troops and mounted police stood guard over the padlocked U.S. and British embassies. Egypt now has no diplomatic relations with either country.

The entire city was blacked out and every glimmer of light was greeted by angry howls from people in the streets.

Loudspeakers in public squares blared out news bulletins and anti-American invective. People in the city gathered in little knots along the streets to listen to transistor radios for latest bulletins about the battle zone.

Police guarded the entrance of a Cairo hotel where 62 Americans were interned. Departure details for them were not yet known. Cairo's International Airport was closed and shipping in and out of Alexandria, Egypt's port on the Mediterranean, was sparse.

Nevertheless, it was expected the Americans would be taken to the port by rail and evacuated soon.

Those interned include a number of teachers, oil men and a handful of tourists trapped in Cairo by the outbreak of war.

Bank Trial Continues in Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A Greenwood, Pa., man testified yesterday that he was killed by an Altona branch bank for repayment of a loan that he had already terminated and had a receipt to prove it.

Paul Catherman of 1402 East Hamilton Lane told a federal court jury he got the receipt from Joy Fortney, on trial on charges of embezzling $23,000 from the bank.

On cross-examination defense attorney Harold Miller suggested that Catherman had actually got the receipt by mistake. It was the third day of the trial of Fortney, accused of misapplying $23,000 while head of the 24th Street Branch of the Altona National Bank. Eight other witnesses testified for the government. Their stories were similar to Catherman's.

MAJOR LEAGUE BASEBALL ROUNDUP:

Nolan Fans 15, But Giants Shade Reds, 4-3 to Takeover 2nd Place

CINCINNATI (AP) — Willie McCovey smashed a three-run homer spoiling a 15-strikeout performance by Cincinnati Rookie Gary Nolan and then the San Francisco Giants pushed across a run in the ninth inning to beat the Reds 4-3 last night.

Nolan, a 19-year-old right-hander, fanned Willie Mays four times but McCovey's two-out shot in the eighth tied the score and knocked him out. The 15 strikeouts were high in the majors this season.

Then in the ninth, Hal Lanier opened with a single and moved to second on a sacrifice. Jim Davenport walked and the runners advanced on reliever Bob Lee's wild pitch. The Lanier scampered home with the winning run on Tom Haller's high bounce in front of the plate.

The Reds had jumped into a 3-0 lead against Juan Marichal in the sixth when Vada Pinson singled and Pete Rose homered. Singles by Deron Johnson and Tommy Helms sandwiched around an error by Mays produced the third run.

But Jesus Alou, who had four hits against Nolan, singled in the eighth and Haller followed with a hit. After Mays struck out for the fourth time, McCovey connected.

Republicans Turn Down Debt Limit

(c) N. Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON—The House of Representatives dealt the Johnson Administration a sharp, but probably temporary, setback yesterday by rejecting a bill to increase the ceiling on the national debt by $29 billion, to $365 billion.

The vote against passage was 210 to 197, with Republicans voting solidly to kill the bill. Enough Democrats, mostly southerners, voted with them to turn the tide.

About six northern Democrats who are opponents of the war in Vietnam also joined the opposition.

Yesterday's action raised the possibility—though a slim one—of financial chaos after June 30. At that time the debt limit reverts to its "permanent" ceiling of $285 billion, though the debt, at $330 billion, is already far above that level. In such situations, the level authority of the Treasury to pay its bills would be in doubt. However, the Ways and Means Committee is regarded as certain to come back to the House shortly with another bill, perhaps with a smaller debt limit increase.

Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., the committee chairman, said he had not yet decided on his plan of action. Yesterday was only the second time in the 10 years that he has been committee chairman that he has lost a bill on the floor.

Republican leaders conceded a debt limit bill would be necessary. "We'll have to work something out," Mills said, adding that a ceiling of $365 billion "may have seemed very high to some."

This is the first time the House has rejected a debt limit bill, though the vote in recent years has been getting closer and closer.

Republicans argued that rejection of the bill would be a signal to the Johnson Administration that Congress would no longer tolerate "runaway spending" particularly rising nondefense spending.

Israeli Soldiers Unify Jerusalem

(c) N. Y. Times News Service
JERUSALEM — Israeli soldiers yesterday seized the Old City of Jerusalem from Jordanian forces and restored the unity of the ancient city for the first time since 1948.

Within hours, khaki-clad Israeli soldiers were praying at the Walling Wall, Judaism's most sacred site.

The 47-hour battle ended at about 10 a.m. when an Israeli column broke through St. Stephen's Gate on the eastern side of the city, opposite Israeli Jerusalem and facing the Garden of Gethsemane, site of the betrayal of Jesus Christ.

A 37-year-old colonel, who could not be identified officially, entered the city at the head of a column that encountered little resistance. It entered near the Mosque of Omar, the sacred Moslem site said to be where Abraham ascended to heaven.

The colonel said that within minutes a group of Arab notables representing civil and religious bodies approached him with a pledge of truce. "We agreed, providing they did not shoot at us, and we both kept our word," the colonel said.

Snipers continued to shoot from buildings in the Moslem quarters, however, while pockets of Arab resistance maintained machine gun and mortar fire from outside the Old City walls.

They aimed not at the Old City but at the southern part of Israeli Jerusalem between Abu Tor and Ramat Rahel.

Israelis in Jerusalem thus were forced to stay in their shelters for the third successive day while listening to radio reports hinting at the virtual collapse of Arab resistance across the border.

By late afternoon they had heard news of dramatic Israeli gains in Sinai, especially the capture of paratroopers of Sharm El Sheikh, the Egyptian outpost overlooking the narrow Strait of Tiran.

It was the blockade of the Strait, Israel's only outlet for her southern port of Elath, that created much of the tension leading to Monday's outbreak of hostilities.

An official army announcement said that the lonely Egyptian position, isolated at the southern tip of Sinai, had been captured by paratroopers with the aid of the Israeli Navy.

Meanwhile, Israeli forces continuing their advance westward across Sinai expected to reach the Suez Canal by nightfall. Three columns were moving toward the canal.

It was reported that a column moving along the coastal road in what Israelis refer to as the "northern axis" had taken Rumman, said to be within sight of the canal.

The central force had passed Bir Gifgafa and was expected to encounter little opposition.

Another force heading in a southwesterly direction had passed the junction of Nakhil. Gains also were reported north and south of Jerusalem to what is known as the western bank, that part of Jordan that once was a part of the British Mandate of Palestine.

Communist China Still Backs Arabs

(c) N. Y. Times News Service
HONG KONG — Communist China yesterday provided new evidence of its support for the Arab cause in the Middle East conflict.

While more than 100,000 demonstrators streamed through Peking's streets in a massive, slogan-shouting display of pro-Arab sentiment, Premier Chou En-lai sent personal messages to three Arab leaders assuring them of his country's backing.

Newspaper editorials and reports attacking Israel, the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union further testified to the pro-Arab posture of the Peking regime.

In castigating the U.S. and Britain, the Chinese Communists indicated their acceptance of the Arab claim that U.S. and British planes had assisted the Israelis in their attacks on Arab forces.

Maritime Interests Ask Delay in Action

(c) N. Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON—The oil and maritime industries told Congress yesterday that they should not be punished for accidentally polluting the sea with oil.

They also asked that any action to tighten the federal water pollution law, adopted last year, be delayed until the inter-governmental maritime consultative organization had further opportunity to investigate oil pollution and make recommendations.

Hsinhua, the Chinese Communist press agency, said "the U.S. and British imperialists have not only incited the armed (Israeli) aggression but have already had their own carrier-based planes in the Middle East join in the aggression against the Arab nations."

No Loaded Planes Have Left Carriers

By BOB HORTON
ABOARD USS AMERICA (AP) — No planes with bombs have left this 6th Fleet aircraft carrier since word of the Middle East war reached here Monday morning, despite Arab charges of U.S. participation in the conflict.

A practice bombing exercise, directed against a small isle near Crete in the eastern Mediterranean, was under way when the news arrived. Small A-4 subsonic planes equipped with two 250-pound bombs flew out about midmorning Monday and were back on deck shortly after noon.

Later practice bombing missions were canceled. At the time the carrier was approximately 200 miles northwest of Cairo.

Newsman have observed no activities which would indicate combat missions were afoot. Pilots scoffed at any suggestion that U.S. planes had been involved in the air war.

An official Navy spokesman issued a statement to reporters saying: "No aircraft from 6th Fleet carriers have penetrated the air space of any North African or Middle East country."

None of the carrier's planes left Tuesday. An almost eerie calm reigned over the America as the fleet stood vigil for any orders from Washington.

Yesterday morning officers said the America and her task group of about half a dozen destroyers and a cruiser generally were holding to an area about 45 miles southeast of Cairo.

The only sign of any possible offensive measures being taken was the loading of half a squadron of A-4 Skyhawk attack planes with six 500-pound bombs or two air-to-surface Bullpup missiles.

On an alert status on deck are three Phantoms equipped with two heat-seeking Sidewinder missiles and two Sparrow homing missiles, both for air-to-air use.

The task group seemed to be marking time, sometimes shifting positions south of Crete merely to keep on the move.

Censorship placed over news copy leaving the carrier late Monday was lifted later.

Officers aboard the America were directed not to discuss specific locations or future deployments of the task force.

Low-Flying Jets Hit Egyptian Crafts on Ground

(c) N. Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — At least a part of the Israeli air force that caught large numbers of Egyptian aircraft on the ground in the early hours of the war are believed to have slipped through gaps in Egypt's early warning radar net by coming in over the Mediterranean.

This possibility was raised yesterday by Pentagon analysts. If correct, it would explain how Israeli pilots were able to surprise so many Egyptian jets before they could get into the air. It might also provide part of the explanation behind insistent Arab claims that carrier-based United States and British jets participated in the raids.

The early destruction of Arab, and especially Egyptian, air strength is credited by most military analysts as having been a decisive factor in the Israeli successes on land that followed.

The vast majority of the 2,500-odd species of bees live outdoors apart from man. They are among the older insects, having evolved several hundred million years ago, long before man appeared on the scene with his kitchens.

Dorothy Parker Is Dead

NEW YORK—Dorothy Parker, the sardonic humorist who parlayed her wit in conversation, short stories, verse and criticism, died yesterday in her suite at the Volney Hotel in Manhattan. She was 73 years old.

In print or in person, she sparkled with a word or a phrase, for she honed her humor to its most economical size. Much of her wit was spontaneous. Its rapid quality gained its early renown from her membership in the Algonquin Round Table, an informal luncheon club at the Algonquin Hotel in the Nineteen-Twenties at which gathered some of the city's most sedulous framers of bon mots.

Franklin P. Adams, the somewhat informal elder statesman of the group, printed her remarks in his "Conning Tower" column and fame was quickly rapping on Miss Parker's door. Miss Parker was a little woman with a dollish face and basket-hound eyes, in whose mouth buttermilk hardly ever melted. It was a case, as Alexander Woolcott once put it, of "so odd a blend of Little Nell and Lady Macbeth."

Her lifelong reputation as a glittering, annihilating humorist in poetry, essays, short stories and in conversation was compiled and sustained brick-bat by brickbat. She was, however, at bottom a disillusioned romantic, all the fiercer because the world spun against her sentimental nature. She truly loved flowers, dogs and a good cry; and it was this fundamental sadness and shyness that gave her humor its extraordinary bite and intensity.

The best of Miss Parker's humor was wry and dry, antic and offbeat, even that about herself. For her epitaph she suggested "Excuse My Dust," and of her poetry she said, "I was following in the exquisite footsteps of Miss Edna St. Vincent Millay, unhappily in my own horrible sneakers."

She took seriously her couplet about women and glasses. Although she was quite nearsighted, she refrained from wearing her horn-rimmed spectacles in public, or when men were present.

Informed that Clare Boothe Luce was invariably kind to her inferiors, Miss Parker remarked, "And where does she find them?" Of a well-known author, "The only 'ism' she believes in is plagiarism. And of a cocky friend, "His body has gone to his head."

Miss Parker's reputation for light poetry was based on four books of verse: "Enough Rope" (1926), "Sunset Gun" (1928), "Death and Taxes" (1931) and "Not Deep As A Well" (1936). From the late Nineteen-Twenties, when Miss Parker was fined $5 for "sauntering" in a Boston demonstration against the execution of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, she was active in liberal causes.

Meningitis Scare Called Off in Oil City

OIL CITY, Pa. (AP)—A honey-mooning elementary school teacher who was believed to have been exposed to highly contagious spinal meningitis is out of danger.

Health authorities had been unable to locate Mrs. Don Harmon who left Saturday on her honeymoon. One of her pupils, Theresa Edinger of Turkey City, Clarion County, was taken seriously ill and was admitted to a hospital the same day with what doctors thought was spinal meningitis. Children in the school were treated as a precautionary measure while the search went on for Mrs. Harmon.

However, it turned out that the pupil had either a viral infection or influenza meningitis, a fairly common type that is nothing to be alarmed about, said her doctor. The doctor reported that the youngster has greatly improved.

President Bridges To States

(c) N. Y. Times News Service WASHINGTON—President Johnson has decided to use the members of his cabinet as diplomatic agents in his campaign to improve relations between the Administration and state governments.

The President has approved a plan under which each member of the cabinet would be assigned four or five states as his personal responsibility, with instructions to maintain personal contact between the governors and the White House.

As part of the same effort, each of the 50 states will be given a "day" in Washington next fall and winter, when its key officials will fly here to hold conferences all over the Capital, climaxed by a meeting of the governor with the President.

Both projects reflect Johnson's continuing determination to sort out the tangled federal-state relations that have become increasingly complicated by administering the Great Society programs.

Noted Yachtsman Is Hospitalized

(c) N. Y. Times News Service LONDON—Sir Francis Chichester, the 65-year-old yachtsman who sailed around the world alone, was admitted to the Royal Naval Hospital at Plymouth Tuesday night suffering from a bleeding ulcer.

A medical bulletin yesterday said the veteran sailor, whose round-the-world exploit thrilled this seafaring nation, was making "satisfactory progress" and "responding well to treatment."

Earlier the hospital had said that Sir Francis's condition gave no cause for serious concern.

Report No Action In Vietnam War

SAIGON (AP) — The Vietnam war, overshadowed now by Arab-Israeli hostilities in the Middle East, settled yesterday into a pronounced lull.

U.S. military headquarters said that although there were scattered skirmishes, ground fighting had ebbed to its lowest level of the year. There were fewer air raids than usual over the north.

U.S. officers volunteered no reason for the lapse in heavy action but denied it was due in any way to the Middle East war. It seemed neither side regarded this as a good time for any dramatic moves.

Daily communiques since Sunday have said: "No significant contact with the enemy was reported."

Although some of the 88 combat missions Tuesday over North Vietnam penetrated above the heavily defended area of Hanoi and Haiphong, the American jets were not challenged by the North Vietnamese air force. U.S. pilots concentrated on supply lines above the 17th Parallel and on the rail lines leading north from Hanoi. Two of these lines lead to Red China.

Although the weather over much of the north was fairly good, the number of missions

Girl Found Beaten in Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A 16-year-old girl, a piece of board punched into her head, was found at dawn yesterday on a trash-covered lot. She was moaning, though unconscious, under a sheet of plywood.

Catherine Joyce, reported missing by her parents an hour before midnight on Tuesday, was wearing the uniform of West Philadelphia Catholic High School for Girls. She was splattered with blood from multiple head cuts, and her clothing was in disarray.

She underwent brain surgery at Philadelphia General Hospital where her condition was listed as critical.

The debris-strewn lot, behind an auto repair shop, is about a block and a half from the girl's home at 2021 S. Cecil St., just west of 57th St. She was found by William Reynolds, 33, who lives across the street from the shop.

Reynolds told police he had looked out his window shortly before the sun rose and, in the darkness, thought he saw two persons struggling. He said he dressed immediately and went to the lot where he saw a man kicking at the trash.

"I asked him what he was doing," Reynolds told police. "He said he was a scavenger looking for trash. He kept moving away in the lot. He apparently was diverting my attention."

Reynolds went home, but the incident bothered him and at dawn he returned for another look.

This time he heard the moans and found the girl.

Near her, police said, were her pocketbook, a bloodstained lipstick and her underclothes.

Police said an investigation of the area indicated Miss Joyce had been beaten directly behind the shop, then dragged about 30 feet, and beaten again before she was dragged to the place where she was found.

The girl is the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Joyce. The parents celebrated their 20th wedding anniversary yesterday.

Allegheny President Leslie O. Barnes said the value of the Series 30 fan-jets and spare engines the company now has on order is approximately $46 million.

Barnes said Allegheny also has taken options on six more DC-9-30's for future expansion of its pure jet service.

Allegheny took delivery in Long Beach this week of its first Series 30 fan-jet, 15 feet longer than the DC-9-10 it has operated since September 1966.

During the second half of 1967, Allegheny will introduce six DC-9-30's into service. The second order of six Series 30 fan-jets will enter service during the first half of 1968, Barnes said.

Flight performance of the new version is improved by the addition of high-lift devices on leading edges of the wing, which has a four-foot greater span than the Series 10 model. The Series 30 is powered by an advanced version of the Pratt & Whitney JT8D ducted fan-jet engine.

Allegheny's equipment transition and modernization program provides for 12 DC-9-30 fan-jet and 43 jet-prop aircraft and will cost approximately $113 million. Of this amount, $55,500,000 has been provided through long-term borrowings.

In April the company completed a $25 million public offering of 5-1/2 per cent Subordinated Debentures due April 1, 1987, with attached warrants for the purchase of 500,000 shares of the company's common stock.

An American civilian official was among half a dozen persons killed in a raid by 30 Viet Cong early Wednesday on the home of a South Vietnamese district chief at a hamlet 15 miles east of Saigon.

Identification of the American was withheld pending notification of his next of kin.

The others slain were the district chief, his wife and three government troops guarding the hamlet.

Explosion of a Viet Cong mine in the market place of a village 11 miles south of Saigon killed four Vietnamese civilians and wounded three.

Industry May Leave; Tax Blamed

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The chief executive officer of one of the state's biggest manufacturers said yesterday that Gov. Shafer's proposed tax bite on business will mean an exodus of industry from Pennsylvania.

"It happened before," said W. F. Rockwell Jr., of Rockwell-Standard and Rockwell Manufacturing Co. "It will again."

In a prepared statement, Rockwell said that Pennsylvania finances 24.5 per cent of its operation with business taxes, only three-tenths of a per cent less than the maximum in the country.

"Pennsylvania business is glad to do its share," Rockwell said, "but this is ridiculous."

In New York, Rockwell said, business pays 19.4 per cent of the state budget, in Illinois 10.4 per cent and California 17.6 per cent.

"Back in 1958, Pennsylvania had a higher percentage of its budget, 33.8 per cent, paid for by taxing business than any other leading industrial state," Rockwell said, "and we all know what happened as a consequence. Pennsylvania's industrial growth was slowed..."

"Now under this new proposal by Gov. Shafer, Pennsylvania will likely soar again into the lead by providing in excess of 28 per cent in business taxes to finance the cost of state government. The inevitable will happen."

Rockwell also complained that Shafer's proposal to adjust the capitol stock tax would be put off until 1969.

"A lot of business decisions to incorporate elsewhere will be made between now and 1969," he said.

Presbyterian Dedication Set

The United Presbyterian Church of North Warren will rededicate its newly renovated Sanctuary in a special service at 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

The brick building was first dedicated on February 12, 1905 and records show that on that day, the entire cost of construction, $10,500 was either paid or pledged.

Through the years repairs and replacements have maintained the Sanctuary, but this is the first time in about 60 years of constant use a major renovation project has been carried out. Improvements include heating, lighting, painting, structural changes and a new organ.

Sunday's special service will be conducted by the Rev. Nelson E. Beck, pastor of the church. The sermon will be delivered by the Rev. William A. Parsons, general presbyter of the Lake Erie Presbytery of the United Presbyterian Church.

Also participating will be the Rev. Donald H. Spencer, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, Warren, and the Rev. Frank R. Churchill, his assistant.

In addition to the rededication of the sanctuary, several memorials and gifts will be dedicated. Among these will be a chancel cross, prayer bench, communion table, the organ and a music stand.

As part of the celebration marking completion of the sanctuary, John Hoffmann of the music department of State University College in Fredonia, N.Y., will present an organ recital at 7:30 p.m., Sunday, June 18.

Area Man Sentenced To One Year

MAYVILLE, N. Y. — A 43-year-old Warren County man was sentenced to a year in jail Monday in Chautauque County court.

The action came in the case of George W. Miller Jr., of Grand Valley, charged with criminal negligence in operation of a motor vehicle resulting in death. Miller pleaded guilty to the driving charge May 3 following the death June 20, 1966 of a West Ellicott woman.

Miller was driver of the car which collided June 19, 1966 at Hunt rd and Southwestern dr. in New York State, with a car operated by Mrs. Elinor Seiler, 35, of 474 Hunt rd. She suffered multiple injuries in the crash and died the following morning in a Jamestown Hospital. Her two young children accompanying her were also injured. Miller had been free on bail. Two Summerdale brothers received terms of two to four years in Attica State prison on third degree burglary charges to which they pleaded guilty May 15.

They are Gary L. Hannold, 25 and Edwin E. Hannold, 23, both of whom were charged with a break-in Nov. 28, 1966 at Hillview Mercury garage in Westfield, N. Y.

The younger brother was taken into custody near the scene while the other was apprehended in Warren County by state police trooper Harry W. Jabo of the Warren substation about two days later. Both have been held in jail since that time.

Warren County experienced a friendly European invasion Tuesday when a group of 106 Western Swiss Wood Manufacturers were guests of Wendell McMillen and the McMullen Lumber Company at Sheffield.

The group from Switzerland is on a technical tour of Eastern Canada and Northeastern United States, studying forestry, logging, lumber mills and wood products manufacturing.

The three busloads of men and women, accompanied by tour guides and interpreters of both

French and German, were welcomed by Wendell McMillen, president of McMullen Lumber Company, and top brass of both Pennsylvania Department of Forests and Waters and U.S. Forest Service.

Secretary of Forests and Waters of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania Maurice Goddard was represented by Forster Ronald Gale, State Wood Utilization Advisor, from the Harrisburg headquarters of the department. Gary Grecco, Statewide Hardwood Improvement Forester from Connersport District office, and Robert Ache, District Forester, Dist. 14, with Headquarters in Warren, also represented the Pa. Dept. of Forests and Waters. Allegheny National Forest Deputy Supervisor Donald S. Gorton and Sheffield District Forest Ranger Laurence Stolz represented the United States Forest Service.

In addition to their tour of the log mill and dimension stock mill, many visitors from Switzerland discussed various aspects of forestry and forest

Guiding the tour were Marcel Giannoni, assistant manager Wagons Lits-Cook Lausanne, Switzerland, Mary Collins of New York, French interpreter, and M. Meserrett.

The group attended Expo '67 in Montreal on their tour. They will visit Washington, D.C., and other points, spending several days in New York City before flying to Switzerland by Swissair for their return.

Crawford County Deputies Return Escapade to Jail

Crawford County Sheriff Norman H. Zimmer and his chief deputy Elton Wykoff, returned to Meadville Tuesday from Los Angeles where they had gone Friday to bring back Michael E. Ender, an escapee from the county jail.

The two officials flew to Los Angeles and back, departing and arriving at Cleveland airport. Ender was confined in jail after waiving a preliminary hearing on charges of larceny of an auto and forgery of a bank check.

He was a trusty when he walked away from the jail yard March 10 while helping to wash the sheriff's car. He was picked up in Los Angeles' skid row for questioning and admitted he had escaped. Ender waived extradition.

Push Kinzua Dam

The brochure promoting the Holiday Inn in Oil City tells guests how to discover the fun area. Listed is the Kinzua Dam, described as a beautiful scenic trip through magnificent, unspoiled country to the impressive flood control dam. Also mentioned is the Allegheny State Forest and Cook Forest as well as the Tionesta Dam, Pithole City and Drake Well Park and Museum.

Right of Way

State police say that in the absence of traffic signals, the driver on the right usually has the right of way at an intersection. But it is never right to take the right of way, someone must yield it to you. Intersections are dangerous places for accidents.

Meadville Man

A passenger in the car in which Astronaut Edward G. Glens was killed Tuesday was a resident of Meadville. Identified as being with Glens was Major William S. IT WAS A "SURPRISE BREAKFAST", an annual and traditional summer entertainment, that brought about 50 members of the Newcomers Club together on Tuesday morning at the home of Mrs. Peter Pryor, 8 Brook street. Newcomers know the breakfast is coming — But the question is when? — And many times they are caught unaware that THIS IS THE DAY until a member "in the know" arrives to escort them, however they may be dressed at that very minute, to the home of the hostess. This can be frustrating — Especially if for days you have delighted your family with the glamour of your appearance so early in the morning — but — this just happens to be the day you let down your guard, decided to relax and take it easy! However, the group pictured here seems attractive enough, and I even spot a touch of that glamour I was speaking about. Standing in the center are the Newcomers officers, from left to right: Mrs. Lynn Smith, secretary; Mrs. Arlene Pryor, membership chairman and hostess; Mrs. Valerie Grady, president, and Mrs. Dorothy Buskey, coffee chairman. KINZUA C. B. RANGERS will be gathering this Sunday, June 11th at the Scandia Clubhouse — Thousands of people are expected, so I was told, from New York, Ohio, and southwestern Pennsylvania, as well as this area — The Rangers who want to camp overnight will start to arrive on Saturday, and for their entertainment — and the general public — a square dance will be held in the clubhouse. There will be live country music and a caller. Music for all-day Sunday will be provided by the recording musicians "The Country Ramblers". Sunday is THE day! That is the day on which all kinds of trophies and prizes are to be awarded; the two highest being an AM FM radio and a Demco Satellite radio; free coffee will be served and there will also be a chicken barbecue, and hotdogs and hamburgers. And, that isn't all folks, the day's program will also include thrilling and picturesque airplane rides over Kinzua Dam, Co-chairmen of this rather stupendous event are John Strickroth and Bud Chiodo.

APOLOGIES TO THE ROBERT PHILLIPS who are the co-chairmen of the 191st Birthday Party for Uncle Sam at the Coweango Valley Country Club, on Monday, the night before the Fourth of July. It is expected this year, with the committee already deep in plans and hard work and fresh ideas, that this year's party will be the best one of its kind on record at the club.

SUMMER THEATRE HAS A NAME NOW — henceforth it will be known as Plowright Playhouse, and the winner who submitted the name for consideration is none other than LeRoy Schneck of WNAE, who for his efforts receives two season tickets. Incidentally season tickets are on sale now at $5 each — The ticket may be used in a number of combinations, or ways: For one person to see five plays, alone; to take four people and yourself to see one play; or for you and your date (this allows you to see two plays together, and then you can flip a coin to see which one gets to attend the one play left on your ticket, alone). Single admissions to the plays will be $2. The play season opens its doors to the public with "The Subject Was Roses" by Frank Gilroy on Wednesday, June 28th. Each of the season's five plays scheduled will run for two weeks, playing Wednesdays through Sundays each week. The stars of the opening play are Lois Byham, Alfred Hilse and Joe Niccolini. Refreshments will be sold on the night of every performance. For tickets call Mrs. Edith O'Hara at 723-3284, or drive out to the Plowright Playhouse, just two miles past Scandia, any weekend; members working there should have plenty of tickets, and who knows, you may find it fun to help too.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I was 19, pregnant and unmarried. The boy was willing to marry me, but I am happy to say I turned him down. And this is what I am writing about. It was the right decision and I want to tell every girl who may one day be faced with the choice to find the courage, for the love of heaven, and do as I did.

Now that the ordeal is over, I am free to make a new life for myself. What's more my child is in the home of a happy couple who love him and can give him the security I never could.

My cousin (age 17) who became pregnant made the other choice because her parents wanted her to, and she is miserable. Her husband feels he did her a favor by marrying her and now he figures he is entitled to do as he pleases. The baby is asthmatic and my cousin is a nervous wreck. Her doctor and minister have recommended divorce.

Please keep telling girls to go it alone, Ann. They'll never regret it. — SUNNY SKIES AHEAD

Dear Sunny: I have repeatedly said a trapped groom makes a rotten husband. Thanks for saying it better.

Dear Ann Landers: Your column is probably the most talked about and influential daily feature in American newspapers. Your impact on the lives of millions of people is staggering — and yes, frightening.

Because your word is accepted as gospel truth, it is essential that your concepts be based on the latest data. I believe some of your notions, Ann Landers, could stand serious re-examination. For example, when asked what is the average American woman looking for today, you give the same answer that has been good for the past 2,000 years: "A woman wants love, understanding, integrity — to be needed, to be fulfilled." This may have been true for two centuries, but times have changed, and so have American women.

Please tell your readers that today the average American woman wants a man with money, good looks, good clothes and a good car. If you haven't got the loot, the looks, the threads, and the machine — forget it, Mac.

So get tuned in, Annie, and tell it the way it is. Dames today want the lush life, not love. And I hope they get everything they deserve. — U. OF WASHINGTON

Dear U. of Wash.: Sorry, I don't buy it. There have always been dames who put money and comfort first, and these dolls go back further than 2,000 years. But an easy life with no emotional support didn't make them happy THEN, and it doesn't make them happy NOW.

The woman with a full set of brains does not look for looks, loot, or superficial trappings. She knows a glamorous facade which may fool the casual observer is like ashes in the mouth when there is no love, understanding and mutual respect.

Vacation Bible School Opens In Youngsville EUB Church

The Youngsville E.U.B. ## Hints From Heloise

Rusty Pads No More

DEAR FOLKS:

Do you hate a soap-filled pad because it rusts once you have used it? Let me tell you what to do.

Get an empty peanut butter jar (I happen to use an extra sugar bowl because it looks nice on my drainboard) and put a soap-filled pad in it. Turn on your hot water faucet. Let the water get real hot...

Fill the jar at least halfway with hot water. Take a spoon and push the pad UNDER the water.

Cap the jar (if you are using a sugar bowl put the lid back on) and let it sit on your drainboard overnight.

Here's where your surprise will come:

The next morning as you lift up the pad you will find a thick gloopy substance. This is wonderful. I call it jewelers' rouge. As you pick up the pad, squeeze most of this soapy residue out... then scour your pots and pans! You haven't wasted all of the jewelers' rouge.

After you are through using the pad as a scourer, rinse it under the faucet to get all of the particles of mashed potatoes, scrambled eggs, etc., out of it, leaving the pad perfectly clean. Place it back in the jar of goop, being sure that it is UNDER the water.

You can use the pad for weeks and it will not rust if you use this method.

If the water line goes down, add some more water, or some type of liquid detergent. But don't let the air get to the steel wool. This is what causes rust.

Gee, I love to save a penny. Don't you?

DEAR HELOISE:

A good place to leave notes for your children, your husband or yourself (I'm always trying to remember something myself...) is on the front door of your refrigerator.

Anchor them with a small magnet. It works like magic. You can't possibly miss it as everyone in the entire family goes to the refrigerator for something at some time during the day.

DEAR HELOISE:

Did you ever forget to iron your husband's shirt till the last minute... and he's getting dressed?

When I do, I dip a bath towel in hot water and wring it out fairly well. Put the shirt in it and roll it up and in a few moments it is perfect for ironing.

DEAR HELOISE:

I sell perfume and would like to help your readers.

I quite agree that all of those beautiful bottles of perfume and cologne should be displayed proudly.

But please, ladies, do not display them where they will be in the sun. It will evaporate your perfume and over a period of time will actually

Ludlow Man Receives Episcopal Citation

KANE — Clair H. Gardner of Ludlow, retired freight agent for the Pennsylvania Railroad, received the 1967 Bishop's citation at the 57th annual convention of the Episcopal Diocese of Erie. The citation was made by Bishop William Crittenden.

The citation reads: "There are few people who live with the persistent singleness of purpose in serving the common welfare and their fellow men than does Clair Gardner. In his life as a churchman this has been attested to many times through the years as a member of the executive committee of St. John's Episcopal Church in Kane; as the Episcopal Churchmen's parish key man; as a member of the Diocesan department of missions and the Diocesan Council."

The citation also takes note of civic efforts of Mr. Gardner in community effort and especially for "the welfare of youth."

The Ludlow man was a scoutmaster for more than 20 years and was the recipient of the first Silver Beaver Award to be given in Warren County. Through the years, the Ludlow scouts have been affiliated with the Warren County organization. He is a charter member of the Ludlow Community Association, a Rotarian and member of the youth board of Union City.

His daughter is Mrs. William H. Muir, 5 Lansing st., North Warren, an active member of Trinity Memorial Church in Warren.
